ROOSEVELT ASKS FOR REVIVAL OF HAWES-CUTTING
PHILIPPINE BILL

Proposes Amendment to Relinquish Military Bases
After Independence, Suggests Solution for Naval Bases.

ISLANDS REJECTED
PROPOSITION BEFORE

President Thinks 12 to 14
Years Necessary for Possession to Take Over Self-Government — Bill Introduced.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—President Roosevelt today asked Congress to revive the Hawes-Cutting Philippine independence law with an amendment for relinquishment of the military base when the islands become independent and provisions for "ultimate settlement" of the disposition of the naval bases.

The Hawes-Cutting legislation, passed a year ago by Congress, automatically lapsed early this year by failure of the Philippine Government to accept it. It provided for independence within 12 or 14 years.

It also provided that the United States would retain the option of keeping certain military and naval bases in the islands after independence. Roosevelt proposed that the military bases be relinquished simultaneously with independence.

As to the naval bases he recommended "the ultimate settlement of this matter on terms satisfactory to our own Government and that of the Philippine Islands."

The President's Message.

The text of the President's message follows:

"To the Congress:

"Over a third of a century ago the United States as a result of a war which had its origin in the Caribbean Sea acquired sovereignty over the Philippine Islands, which lie many thousands of miles from shores across the widest of oceans."

"Our nation covets no territory; it desires to hold no people over whom it has gained sovereignty through war against their will."

"In keeping with the principles of justice and in keeping with our traditions and aims, our Government for many years has been committed by law to ultimate independence for the people of the Philippine Islands whenever they should establish a suitable government capable of maintaining that independence."

Law Passed Year Ago.

"A law passed by the Seventy-Second Congress over a year ago was the initial step, providing the methods, conditions and circumstances under which our promise was to be fulfilled. That act provided that the United States would retain the option of keeping certain military and naval bases in the islands after actual independence had been accomplished."

"As to the military bases, I recommend that this provision be eliminated from the law and that these bases be relinquished simultaneously with the accomplishment of final Philippine independence."

"As to the naval bases, I recommend that the law be so amended as to provide for the ultimate settlement of this matter on terms satisfactory to our own Government and that of the Philippine Islands."

"I do not believe that other provisions of the original law need be changed at this time. Where imperfections or inequalities exist, I am confident that they can be corrected after proper hearing and in fairness to both peoples."

Need of Sufficient Time.

"I emphasize that while we desire to grant complete independence at the earliest proper moment, to effect this result without allowing sufficient time for necessary political and economic adjustments would be a definite injustice to the people of the Philippine Islands themselves little short of a denial of independence itself. To change at this time, the economic provisions of the previous law would reflect discredit on ourselves."

"In view of the fact that the time element is involved, I suggest that the law be amended as I have above suggested and that the time limit for the acceptance of the law by the proper authorities and by the people of the Philippine Islands be sufficiently extended to permit them to reconsider it."

"For 26 years the relations be-

CHICAGO, March 2.—Dr. Alice L. Wyneko, testifying in her trial charged with the murder of her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Rheta Wyneko, today repudiated her "confession," and testified she made it on the assurance of police that her son, Earle, would be released.

Told Son Confessed.

After the noon recess Smith asked Dr. Wyneko to tell about her meeting with Dr. Harry R. Hoffman, Cook County psychiatrist, at the police station.

"Did he say anything about being your friend?" He said in effect, "I'm your friend. I'm here to help you."

"Did he say to you that Earle had confessed?" "Yes."

"What did you say?" "I said 'Oh, no, I don't believe that.' He replied, 'Oh, you have come through and feel better.'

"Did he say to you that Earle wanted you to confess your part?"

"Words to that effect. He said,
'Now, you tell your story. You'll feel better just as Earle does and he wants you to tell all you know about it.'

As for herself, the police told her, she said, that if she "told the story" in the manner suggested, it was probable she would not be held.

She testified that Capt. John Siege, in charge of the station where she was questioned after her daughter-in-law had been found dead in Dr. Wyneko's basement surgery, said in urging her to make a statement:

"If the doctor makes that statement it probably won't even call for an indictment. The statement involves no crime."

The confession referred to was a statement signed by the woman physician—she identified the signature as her own—saying that she administered chloroform to examine Rheta, and fired a shot into the girl's body when she found that Rheta had not sustained the anesthetic.

Denies the Story She Told.

Dr. Wyneko told the jury, in a half dozen answers, that the "confession" was entirely the brainchild of her police interrogators.

That "story" of Rheta's death, she said, was suggested to her by Assistant State's Attorney John M.
Long, who reminded her, she said, that "anesthetics are mighty treacherous."

But she resisted making the statement, she said, telling the authorities: "I can't do it because I didn't do it."

She quoted the Assistant State's Attorney as saying, "Couldn't you say you gave Rheta an anesthetic to perform a minor operation?"

To this, she said, she at first answered, "She didn't need an operation, and I never gave an anesthetic alone in my life."

"They told me," she said, "that I made the statement they suggested, was an indiscretion—but judgment."

"I neither shot nor chloroformed Rheta," she said emphatically.

She then was turned over to the State for cross-examination.

Questions by Attorney.

In closing his direct examination, Attorney W. W. Smith asked: "Did you on Nov. 21 fire a shot into the body of Rheta Wyneko?" "Certainly not."

"Did you administer chloroform to her on Nov. 12?" "No."

"Is the statement you made and signed true?" "No."

"Did you love Rheta?" But her Smith was interrupted by objections from the State.

She said she asked to see Earle and that he was brought in to her.

She then related that in her story of the operating table death mystery where she was to tell how she found her daughter-in-law dead, Dr. Wyneko choked with emotion, her voice failed her, and she was unable momentarily to continue.

"You saw her face, Doctor, and what did you note?" asked Defense Attorney W. W. Smith.

"—noted a—peculiar color," was the answer.

"What did that color indicate to you?"

Dr. Wyneko struggled to answer. Her thin lips were tightly closed. With a gasp she threw

OFFICERS' SONS HIRED BY AIR MAIL MEN

Lehr Fess, Julius Kahn, "Young" Philip Others Besides Ernest Smoot Named by Witness.

MORE ABOUT BIG MAP CONFERENCE

Albert Frank, National Park Airways, Possible Exception in Collusion Charge, is Heard.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, March 2.—Lehr Fess, Julius Kahn and "Young" Philip have been added to the list of sons of families well known in Washington who have part in the dictating of airline companies for contracts to carry the mails.

Harris M. Hanshue, president of Western Air Express, told a Senate committee yesterday that Fess and Philip represented National Air Transport at an air operators' conference and that Kahn had done political work in Washington for Western Air.

Fess is a son of the Republican Senator from Ohio, Philip a son of John Fess, a former Postmaster-General, and Kahn a son of Representative Florence P. Kahn (Rep.), California.

The hearing already had brought out the dealings of Ernest W. Smoot, son of the former Senator from Utah, with Government departments for airlines and other concerns while holding a post with a Senate committee.

Hanshue said Kahn did traffic work in San Francisco for Western Air and was in Washington a relatively short time doing political work.

An "Amused Observer."

Albert Frank, president of the National Parks Airways, which Postmaster-General Farley has indicated might be a possible exception to the charge of collusion in awarding mail contracts, told the committee he had been an "amused observer" at the 1930 Washington air map conference.

Frank said he told William P. MacCracken, chairman of the meeting, that he did not see how the operators could get the routes they wanted even if they came to an agreement.

"Mr. MacCracken told me," he continued, "that the modus operandi was not up to us but up to the Postmaster-General."

Brown refused him a 200-mile extension, Frank asserted, on the ground that the Department of Commerce had not installed lights along the route, and then granted a 400-mile extension to the Northwest Airways to the same terminus.

Frank testified that his line, running north from Salt Lake City, received a mail contract in 1927 by competitive bidding. According to his knowledge, he said, those at the conference did not discuss competitive bidding or refraining from it.

Administration Was Assured Army Was in Condition to Carry Mail.

Meanwhile, a subcommittee of the House Military Committee was told that the administration was assured the Army Air Corps was in a proper condition to carry the mails before that job was assigned to it.

For three hours the committee heard Major-General Benjamin D. Foullie, chief of the Army Air Corps, discuss preparations to carry the mails.

Explanation of His Activities Made By Senator Fess' Son.

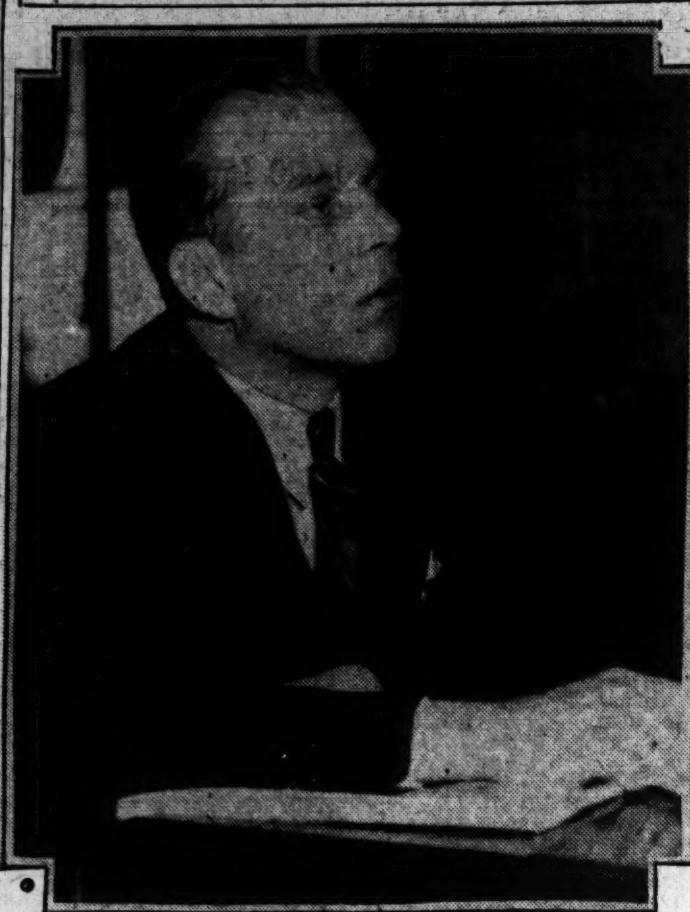

By the Associated Press. TOLEDO, O., March 1.—Attorney Lehr Fess, son of Senator Smoot, faced charges last night he had any part in negotiations of airways companies for contracts to carry the mails.

"The law firm of which I am a member was employed by National Air Transport, as Ohio counsel, in October, 1930, long after it had obtained its air mail contract," he said. "National Air Transport is the oldest air mail operator, I believe. Outside of the fact that air law is new, most of the work I did involved the usual routine work of the ordinary business corporation."

"At the request of Col. Paul Henderson, N. A. T. 's vice-president, a friend of some years standing, I attended a conference of air mail contractors and their counsel at the Postoffice Department in Washington, same time during the early part of 1931."

"About all I recall about the conference is that then Postmaster-General forced N. A. T. as well as other operators to accept a material reduction in rates, much to

CITY DEMANDS LACLEDE POWER CO. PAY $375,000

Counselor Hay Formally Asks for Tax of 5 Pct. of Gross Receipts for Four Years, 1929-32.

City Counselor Hay today demanded that the Laclede Power & Light Co. remit to the city within 30 days $375,660.24, representing 5 per cent on the company's gross receipts for the four years, 1929-32, as occupational tax for use of city streets and alleys.

The City Counselor, in a letter to the company, demands further that a statement of 1933 receipts be filed with the Comptroller and the tax for that year, at 5 per cent, also be paid.

"Unless this is done," Hay writes, "it will be my duty, by appropriate action, to enforce compliance."

Citing Section 2095, of the city statutes, Hay states in his communication to the Laclede company that "a survey of the sources of revenue disclosed that your company has failed to file a semi-annual statement of gross receipts with the Comptroller, as provided by statute, and have failed to pay the occupational tax."

He then explains that the statute of limitations has expired on the tax, which may have been due prior to July 1, 1929, adding, "but that does not absolve you from paying for the period covered by the last five years."

Quoting the company's annual reports to the Missouri Public Service Commission, Hay places the gross receipts for the four years at $7,517,204.83, divided as follows: $1,810,902.71 in 1929; $1,865,518.49 in 1930; $1,924,307.88, 1931; $1,916,473.75, 1932.

Officials said that the robbery occurred presumably while the guard, William H. Coghill, was on his way from the Federal Reserve Bank. He was stopped at the entrance to an alley. Traffic police nearby were unaware of the robbery until the six men in a black sedan sped out of the alley.

Exports and Imports.

"You and I know that the world does not stand still; that trade movements and relations once interrupted can with the utmost difficulty be restored; that even in tranquil and prosperous times there is a constant shifting of trade channels."

"How much greater, how much more violent is the shifting in these times of change and of stress is clear from the record of current history. Every nation must at all times be in a position quickly to adjust its taxes and tariffs to meet sudden changes and avoid severe fluctuations in both its exports and imports."

International Trade.

"You and I know, too, that it is important that the country possess within its borders a necessary diversity and balance to maintain a rounded national life, that it must sustain activities vital to national defense and that such interests can not be sacrificed for passing advantage. Obviously clear is the fact that a full and permanent domestic recovery depends in part upon a revised and strengthened international trade and that American exports can not be permanently increased without a corresponding increase in imports."

"Second, other governments are to an ever-increasing extent winning their share of international trade by negotiated reciprocal trade agreements. If American agricultural and industrial interests are to retain their deserved place in this trade, the American Government must be in a position to bargain for that place with other governments by rapid and decisive negotiation based upon a carefully considered program, and to grant with discerning corresponding opportunity in the American market for foreign products supplementary to our own."

ARDEN CAUDLE SUED BY WIFE

She Charges Commission Company Broke Her General Indignities.

Such for divorce was filed by Mrs. Caudle against Arden Caudle, sweetheart of Paul and the character with whom Princess Toussooupoff identifies herself, was only a fictional creation.

Hay told reporters that the case, that the picture player, one Prince Paul Chegodeff, his wife, who resembles the Prince Felix and that Princess Natasha sweetheart of Paul and the character with whom Princess Toussooupoff identifies herself, was only a fictional creation.

Jowitt, opening for the defense, ridiculed the Princess' charge that the moving picture linked her improperly with the monk. It would be "fanciful," he said, to assume that Princess Natasha either was seduced by or was the mistress of Raspoutine.

"I say the character of the Princess Youssououpoff is such," said the lawyer, "that it is perfectly ridiculous to suggest that this alleged libel was applied to her."

The defense lawyer suggested the "possible view" of the suit was that an American woman, known by him as "Mabel," whom he named, had "exploited" the Princess by persuading her to file the action.

Several witnesses testified yesterday that they considered both Prince and Princess Youssououpoff were represented in the film. The witnesses were Gen. Sir John Hanbury Williams and British Admiral Sir Aubrey Smith, high British officials in the service during the war, and Prince Nikita, brother of the Princess.

Prince Youssououpoff's account of the killing and the weird rites that took place in Raspoutine's study in St. Petersburg fascinated listeners at the trial.

The Prince admitted that he had made several visits to the monk for treatment of an ailment from which he suffered. He said that the monk had him lay on a couch, stroked his chest and even placed over his face, creating such a hypnotic spell that he was rendered almost unable to move or speak. He denied that the treatment had done any good.

Under cross-examination, Raspoutine repeated a story he had recounted many times before. He said Raspoutine was invited to the Youssououpoff palace, entertained and fed poisoned cakes and wine. Those means having failed, according to the Prince, he and Purishkevitch fired four shots into the monk's body, and the Prince beat him with a heavy club.

The Prince said that after the killing he lost consciousness and others put the body into the River Neva through a hole in the ice.

EX-CONSTABLE ACQUITTED BY DIRECTED VERDICT

Glenn Smith of Topeka, Kan., former St. Louis county deputy constable, was acquitted of grand larceny by a directed jury verdict in Circuit Judge Note's court at Clayton yesterday.

He was charged with the theft of $200 in scrap steel from the dismantled highway bridge over the Meramec River at Times Beach last October. At the close of the State's case his attorney, Joseph Falzone, offered a demurral to the evidence, which was sustained.

32 per cent of the 1929 value.

"This has meant idle hands, still machines, ships tied to their docks, despairing farm households, and hungry industrial families. It has made infinitely more difficult the planning for economic readjustment in which the Government is now engaged.

Exports and Imports.

"You and I know that the world does not stand still; that trade movements and relations once interrupted can with the utmost difficulty be restored; that even in tranquil and prosperous times there is a constant shifting of trade channels."

"How much greater, how much more violent is the shifting in these times of change and of stress is clear from the record of current history. International Trade.

"You and I know, too, that it is important that the country possess within its borders a necessary diversity and balance to maintain a rounded national life, that it must sustain activities vital to national defense and that such interests can not be sacrificed for passing advantage. Obviously clear is the fact that a full and permanent domestic recovery depends in part upon a revised and strengthened international trade and that American exports can not be permanently increased without a corresponding increase in imports."

"From the policy of reciprocal negotiation which is in prospect, I hope in time that definite gains will result to American agriculture and industry."

"Important branches of our agriculture, such as cotton, tobacco, hog products, rice, cereal and fruit, and, in fact, all of those American industry whose main production methods have led the world will find expanded opportunity and productive capacity in foreign markets, and will thereby be spared in part, at least, the heartbreaking readjustments that must be necessary if the shrinkage of American foreign commerce remains permanent."

"A resumption of international trade cannot but improve the general and thus increase their purchasing power. Let us well remember that this in turn spells increased opportunity for American sales."

"Legislation such as this is an essential step in the program of national economic recovery which the Congress has elaborated during the past year. It is part of an emergency program necessitated by the economic crisis through which we are passing. It should provide that the trade agreements shall be terminated within a period not to exceed three years; a shorter period probably would not suffice for putting the program into effect."

Must Be Ready to Act.

"If the American Government is not in a position to make fair offers for fair opportunities, its trade will be superseded. If it is not in a position at a given moment rapidly to alter the terms on which it is willing to deal with other countries, it cannot adequately protect its trade against discriminations and against bargains injurious to its interests. Furthermore, promises to which prompt effect cannot be given is not an inducement which can pass current at par in commercial negotiations."

For this reason, any smaller degree of authority in the hands of the executive would be ineffective.

The executive branches of virtually all other important trading countries already possess some such power.

"I would emphasize that quick results are not to be expected. The successful building up of trade without injury to American producers depends upon a cautious and gradual evolution of plans."

"The disposition of other countries to grant an improved place to American products should be carefully so, and considered; upon the attitude of each must somewhat depend our future course of action. With countries which are unwilling to abandon purely restrictive national programs, or to make concessions towards the establishment of international trade, no headway will be possible."

No Injurious Disturbance.

"The President's proposal," he added, "would give him exclusive and personal jurisdiction over tariff questions. No such power, vital as it is to the welfare of the country, should be entrusted to one man, to be exercised arbitrarily without hearing where the various sides of a question may be brought out and openly discussed."

"The presentation of this question to the Congress at this time, will, in my opinion, arouse discussion of such length that any project for an early adjournment must be revised."

The House Republican leader, Snell of New York—predicted before the message was received in Congress that Republicans would "solidly support" it to the "bitter end." He ventured further: "It'll be a long time before even a Democratic Congress will give such powers to one man."

"It would be the greatest political weapon ever held by one man," said Snell. "It would give him the power, if he wanted, to wipe out any manufacturing company now receiving protection."

RECOVERY CELEBRATION SALES

SATURDAY, MARCH 3

A YEAR AGO this nation was a nation afraid. Business was afraid. Men and women, haunted by fear and uncertainty, hesitated to exchange money for goods. Banks were closing before long lines of frantic depositors.... Then a Man spoke reassuring words.... A Man moved forward with a nation behind him.... And slowly, but with certain progress, America found herself.... With each new day came new courage to an entire people—a new spirit of Recovery.

Today, with hope renewed, and with confidence restored by the manifest evidences of prosperity's return, our city, by proclamation and by acclamation, celebrates

RECOVERY

And, to herald this celebration, in which the wheels of industry speed up with new energy, the merchants of St. Louis are presenting their outstanding values as a demonstration of the great latent power of the good American Dollar. Displayed for your eager inspection, and advertised within the newspapers, is merchandise which tempts the taste, offered at prices which you know must soon give way to much higher schedules, as Recovery, now so well advanced, brings us again to normal times.

FINAL ACTION ON CITY LIQUOR BILL DELAYED

Measure Carried Over After Aldermen, in Strict Party Lineup, Approve 8 of 33 Clauses.

Party lines, drawn tightly at today's meeting of the Board of Aldermen, kept the scant Democratic majority from carrying out its purpose to pass the liquor-control ordinance without further delay.

The bill, which was introduced Jan. 19, was reported by the Public Safety Committee with amendments, and the first eight of its 33 sections were approved as reported. The board then laid the measure over until next Friday's meeting.

In the meantime, the Democratic leaders will try to solidify the 16 majority votes on all parts of the measure, including the tax of 2 cents a gallon on 5 per cent beer made in St. Louis for sale in the city.

Several Republican members are threatening a fight on the gallonage tax, and the Democratic leaders are seeking to put a solid front on this proposal. Mayor Dickmann is insisting on the gallonage tax as part of the control bill.

Republicans Ask for Delay.

When the bill was reported, a motion to take up the measure section by section was carried by a strict party vote, all the 12 Republicans voting against it. Aldermen Golden and Collins reminded the Republicans that the bill was introduced Jan. 19, and that delay in its passage was costing the city $700 or $800 a day revenue. But the Republicans, led by Alderman Nease, said they wished to study the amendments, and would make a week for that purpose.

Alderman O'Toole, chairman of the Public Safety Committee, opposed delay, saying all members of the board had had the privilege of attending the committee's recent meetings, when sections of the bill have been discussed. Alderman Collins said the Republican members would have to bear the responsibility for delay.

But after the first eight sections were approved, Collins moved that the matter be laid over for one week, which it was. It was understood that this action was taken because of uncertainty on the gallonage tax issue.

Difficult Job for Police.

When the bill, which carries an emergency clause, is passed and signed, the police and prosecuting authorities will face the task which Mayor Dickmann has called "policing the liquor law."

The policy of easy tolerance, which has permitted package liquor stores to flourish, and has allowed soft drink and 3.2 beer permits, will be hard liquor without restraint, will be out of date when the city puts its retailers' licenses on the market.

The ordinance in its final form, and the state law, declare that liquor in the original package shall be sold only by drug stores, cigar stores, grocery, general merchandise, delicatessen or confectionery stores, and that such places must carry a stock of goods, aside from liquor, and must be worth at least $1500. Some of the downtown package liquor places do not meet this requirement, having nothing but liquor in stock. It will be the task of the police to put these places out of business, so that the qualified dealers who take out city licenses may not have unlicensed competition.

The 3.2 Beer Places.

A harder job will be to stop up, licensed dealers of liquor by holders of 3.2 beer permits. This trade has been going on without interference for weeks, until the dealers and the customers have come to view it as almost legitimate and is vested in the right. Under this, the city will find only a limited demand for its by-the-drink license, costing $200 a year.

The city ordinance states that "it shall be the duty of the police to see that the ordinances in regard to sale of liquor at retail are obeyed." It requires a report to be made to the Chief of Police on the first Monday of each month of all places where intoxicating liquor is sold in the city, and "whether such places are kept in an orderly manner." A saloon keeper's organization sought to have this provision eliminated from the ordinance, but it was retained.

The State Liquor Supervisor, E. J. Becker, announced several weeks ago that he would not approve issuance of a license for sale by the drink to any place equipped with an old-fashioned bar; also that he will require liquor to be served at tables, the customers being seated on their premises. This power has not been used to any such extent as to attract public attention.

The city has no right, under the State law, to tax the 3.2 beer dealers. While it is within the power of the city to maintain its own laws, this has far baffled the Aldermen. The 3.2 beer situation, very unsatisfactory from the viewpoint of the city

son why Mayor Dickmann and City Counselor Hay have insisted on the tax of 3 cents a gallon on 5 per cent beer made here for sale in the city.

The city ordinance states that "it shall be the duty of the police to see that the ordinances in regard to sale of liquor at retail are obeyed." Johnson Announces Approval; 40-Hour Week With Minimum Wage of $15 Provided.

By the Associated Press
WASHINGTON, March 2.—Approval of the wholesale coal industry code was announced yesterday by NRA Administrator Johnson. The code becomes effective March 11.

It establishes a "normal" work week of 40 hours and is expected to provide jobs for almost 2000 additional wage earners. Wage minimums are 40 cents an hour for part-time employees and $15 a week for full-time workers. No provision for price regulation is made, except that no member of the industry may discriminate against any group or class of customers, nor may he sell coal below the current market price established under codes for producers.

RETAILERS PLAN SPECIAL DISPLAYS ON RECOVERY DAY

New Stock and Many Novelties Assembled by Merchants for Saturday Buying.

FIRST SHOWING OF STYLES FOR SPRING

Fashions for Men and Children, Latest Ideas in Jewelry—Sales Force Increased.

A committee of St. Louis retailers was among the first to notify Mayor Dickmann of co-operation in the city's plan for a recovery celebration, and every effort has been exerted to make Saturday's sales an outstanding merchandising occasion for shoppers.

Tomorrow's sales are in the nature of a jubilee on the part of the retailers over the success of the first year of the New Deal and the year's pickup in their business; and also an appeal to the public to continue buying that business may go forward. New stocks from many sources have been assembled.

Department stores, furniture houses, men's and women's clothing and specialty shops, jewelry shops and candy shops are included in the recovery celebration sales.

"Members of the Associated Retailers of St. Louis have determined to do their share in the recovery celebration by offering the public genuine buying opportunities," said a prominent merchant yesterday. "To do this, we have made concessions in prices in many items in order to further stimulate business and assist the New Deal."

Several thousand extra persons will be employed Saturday to take care of the crowds expected.

So that the spirit of the occasion may be understood by employees, managers of departments in the larger stores will assemble groups of employees at intervals and striking accomplishments of the New Deal will be reviewed.

Uniform decorations will be used in all the stores as a mark of the co-operative nature of the celebration.

Spring Styles.

In many shops spring fashions will be shown with the very latest modes, colors and fabrics on display.

Importations from European fashion centers as well as new creations of New York style dictators will be ready for the public's inspection.

Hats of jaunty and novel designs are included in the sales, with first showing of 1934 military triumphs.

Household necessities, furniture and decorating fabrics and accessories are also included in the sales to encourage home beautifying. It is believed that never before in the history of St. Louis merchandising has there been so comprehensive a co-operative selling event as tomorrow's sales promise to be.

Art and jewel centers have been visited for choice novelties for this sale and there will be many new touches in semi-precious and costume jewelry on display.

Everything in shoes from the ball room to sports will be on view. Particular attention has been given to children's shoes which will be well cared for in special departments.

For Men and Children.

Younger clothes for the youngers in gay colors and charming fashions will delight mother, who will also find play clothes in attractive designs.

For men, a number of stores will feature fashions as authoritative as those for women, even if colors be more subdued. Boys are not neglected, either, in the sales preparation.

Many of the stores will have window displays of a patriotic character, with interesting exhibits depicting features of the recovery program of President Roosevelt.

It is expected that tomorrow's sales will draw thousands to the city from neighboring towns to share with St. Louisans these unprecedented buying opportunities.

PUBLIC SAFETY DIRECTOR'S SON ON CITY PAYROLL

As Clerk, H. W. Chadsey, Appointed by Fire Chief O'Boyle, Serves as Father's Chauffeur.

A son of Director of Public Safety Chadsey is on the city payroll as a clerk in the Fire Department, over which his father has supervision, it was learned today. He is Hubert W. Chadsey, 35 years old, and lives with his father at 726 Eastgate avenue.

Chief O'Boyle said the employment of his son at $120 a month had made possible abolition of the former custom of assigning two city firemen, working eight-hour shifts, to serve as chauffeurs for the Director of the department. His son, he said, drove him to and from work, and on other city business in addition to performing clerical duties.

CONTINENTAL LIFE

PAYROLL REDUCED

Court Threatens to Keep Ed Mays Away From the Company Offices.

A temporary reduction of the home office payroll of the Continental Life Insurance Co. from $21,000 to $8,000 a month was approved yesterday by Circuit Judge Ryan, after he had said he might have to use a "sharp stick" to prevent disturbances.

E. B. Toler, in charge of the company as agent of the court pending outcome of the dissolution suit against it, submitted a list of 95 employees to be retained. There had been 200. Toler said he would like to dismiss four watchmen if he could be certain there would be no more disturbances.

Judge Ryan wanted to know who had caused disturbance and Toler said it was Ed Mays, president of the company.

"If you can't keep me with these complaints of disturbances I'll take a sharp stick to the matter," Judge Ryan said. He said that if necessary he would keep Mays away from the offices.

Toler informed the court a policeman has been on duty there since Monday.

A complaint that Mays had threatened Louis Marks, secretary of the company, was made to the Court Monday by State Insurance Superintendent O'Malley. Marks was an important witness for Superintendent O'Malley in the pending suit to have the company declared insolvent.

Marks remains on the payroll at $200 a month instead of his former salary of $416 a month. Mays, whose salary as president was $25,000 a year, has been off the payroll since the suit was filed two months ago.

Votes to Aid Dry Agent's Victim.
By the Associated Press
WASHINGTON, March 2.—The House last night approved and sent to the Senate a bill to grant compensation to George Charles Walther of Underwood, Wash., who was shot in the back on Sept. 1, 1923, by a prohibition agent. An effort was made by the Justice Department to prosecute Walther on a charge of conspiracy to violate the dry laws, but the case was dismissed. The bill gives Walther $100 a month for the rest of his life.

Hurt When Another Car Crashes Into His Parked Machine.

Charles Sutter Jr., 18 years old, 4902 Geraldine avenue, stopped his automobile in Natural Bridge avenue, near Vandeventer avenue, to wipe rain off the windshield at 7:45 p. m. yesterday. Another machine, driven by Gerhard Kelsch, 20, a postoffice special delivery messenger, crashed into Sutter's car, knocking him down. At Christian Hospital Sutter was pronounced suffering from concussion of the brain and severe bruises.

Miss Margaret Nelson, 17 years old, 5298 Maffitt avenue, was knocked down by an automobile driven by John H. Brandes, a city fireman, at Union boulevard and St. Louis avenue, last night. Brandes took her to Dr. Paul Hospital, where she was pronounced suffering from a fractured cheek bone and a skull injury.

OLD RUSSIAN RAIL COMPANY WINS POINT IN BANK SUIT

Court Holds Corporation Has Right to Claim Funds Deposited in New York.

By the Associated Press
ALBANY, N. Y., March 2.—A railroad corporation under the old imperial Russian Government and the Kerensky regime, subsequently nationalized by the Soviet Government, is entitled to lay claim to funds it has on deposit in a United States bank, in the opinion of the Court of Appeals.

The State's highest tribunal made its ruling in denying the request of the New York Trust Co. to have restored certain portions of its answer to a suit instituted by the railway to recover funds. These were stricken out by the lower courts.

Briefly, the trust company contested it owned unpaid obligations of the imperial Russian Government and that it has a lien on the deposit. Many residents of the United States purchased 4 per cent bonds of the railway on which no payments of either principal or interest have been made since July, 1918, the bank alleged.

Massachusetts Police Chief Receives Money After Request to Call; Woman Involved.

Special to the Post-Dispatch
BOSTON, March 2.—Brigadier-General Daniel C. Needham, State Commissioner of Public Safety, disclosed today he had received $3500 in $20, $10, $5 and $1 bills at a Boston lawyer's office, the lawyer turning over the cash for a woman. The State police head had been called by telephone from his office. Arriving at the office of the lawyer, Gen. Needham said, the attorney accompanied him to another office. There a second man handed over to Gen. Needham a bundle which contained a cash box, inside of which was the currency. The lawyer promised to have the man available at any time, explaining the money was being turned over to State police for a woman.

Gen. Needham pledged himself not to reveal the identity of those involved.

While the money was being handed over, Gen. Needham said, a woman stepped out of a darkened room in the lawyer's office. Her identity was not disclosed. Needham indicated the money had a bearing on a recent crime.

COUNTY LEAGUE OUTLINES FIGHT ON WATER TAX RULING

To Take Contest to Supreme Court if Necessary; One District Received Entire Assessment.

The fight of the League of County Municipalities to set aside a ruling by Assessor Neaf of St. Louis County, transferring all assessments to the St. Louis County Water Co. to the Little Rock District, will, if necessary, be carried to the State Supreme Court, it was decided at a meeting of the league last night.

Charles J. Dolan, former special tax attorney for the City of St. Louis, who has been retained by the county districts and municipalities affected, is to present the case to the County Board of Equalization next week. A report on the case, prepared by Dolan and read last night, indicated Supreme Court decisions, on which Neaf based his ruling, might not affect the situation in St. Louis County.

Neaf holds that "tax on pipes and other property of the water company, wherever situated, should be paid to the district where the company plant stands, instead of the districts where the property is located. The other districts hold this will mean an unfair distribution of the taxes."

GOVERNOR OUSTED AS RELIEF CHIEF IN NORTH DAKOTA

Hopkins Charges Langer Collected Political Contributions From Workers on the Aid Staff.

By the Associated Press
WASHINGTON, March 2—Gov. William Langer (Rep.), North Dakota, was charged by the Federal Relief Administration yesterday with collecting political contributions from State relief workers and was ordered to relinquish control of the State Relief and Civil Works Administration to Federal authorities.

Harry L. Hopkins, Federal relief director, telephoned Langer to turn the administration over to Judge A. M. Christianson, a member of the State Supreme Court who has been acting as State Administrator. Hopkins made no charges against the State Relief Commission itself.

Immediately after the telegram was made public, the two North Dakota Senators, Nye and Frazier, political associates of Langer, demanded on the floor of the Senate that any officials "alleged to be guilty of wrong doing" be prosecuted after a thorough investigation.

"Let Ax Fall Where It Will." "Let the ax fall where it will," said Nye, "even though it shall involve indictment and trial of one rewarded by election to so high an office as that of Governor of the State I love and happily call home."

Frazier said there should be a thorough investigation and then a full determination of the guilt or innocence of those involved.

Hopkins said in his telegram it was apparent the contributions were used for the Governor's political purposes and asserted the policy would not be tolerated or permitted since it was "directly contrary to the policy of this administration."

Hopkins said he had been informed the State Commission had acted promptly to stop the practice once it was discovered.

"Itch for Political Funds."

Nye told the Senate Langer's administration had been in many ways "courageous" but he was "sorry to say the itch for political funds has gone so far it finds men allegedly demanding toll of even those who accomplish employment through funds afforded by the Federal Government through agencies like those of the Emergency Relief and Public Works."

He said he spoke with "more than a little embarrassment" in view of the support he had given Langer in the last campaign. "With his (Langer's) courage," Nye said, "there has developed, seemingly, a spirit which has had money and the associations of large campaign funds to accomplish re-election a very positive consideration."

"As is usually the case, this urge has not been confined within bounds which seem to be at all reasonable."

Nye said that on the face of the record written as a result of investigation by Federal authorities, he could not "do other than urge that the departments concerned proceed with speed in action against those alleged to be guilty of wrong doing as a result of their urge for money to maintain newspapers and prepare for future election campaigns."

Denies Gloria Swanson Divorce Rumor.

By the Associated Press
LONDON, March 2—Michael Farmer today added his firm denial to that of his wife, Gloria Swanson, of rumors that they are to be divorced. Farmer admitted he was caught off his guard by the rumors and disclosed that he telephoned his actress wife in Hollywood "just to make sure." "She assured me that there was nothing to the story," said Farmer. Farmer expects to return to Hollywood in three or four weeks.

These Sets were made for us BEFORE the rise in silver bullion and they will be the LAST that necessity will ever cause to be produced at a sacrifice price. The Gradwohl Jewelry Co. is only too glad to be able to secure these Sets, thus not only helping the manufacturers employ more workers, but giving its customers a saving they will probably never see again in quality Silverplate.

Positively no interest or carrying charges. All sets sold on our "New Deal" Credit Plan—the same as if you paid all cash!

New York Regional Labor Board

Charges Coercion.

NEW YORK, March 2.—A plumbis issued by the Regional Labor Board for 1450 employees of the Fifth Avenue Coach Co. to determine whether they wished to become members of a company union or an American Federation of Labor organization was declared invalid today by Mrs. Elinore M. Herrick, acting head of the board.

Mrs. Herrick charged intimidation by the employees declined the had affidavits showing the bus drivers, conductors and mechanics had been warned not to vote. A count of ballot boxes showed that only 12 votes had been cast yesterday.

President Still Smiling
At End of His First YearHis Confidence Unshaken and He Stands Strain Well—He Shuns Formalities and Works Hard.By the Associated Press
WASHINGTON, March 2.—One year ago today Franklin D. Roosevelt, smiling and confident, started his term as President. He wears the same smile and shows perhaps even more confidence.

From the start, Franklin D. Roosevelt has given the impression of a man absolutely at home in the presidency. If there has been any change, he is even more informal than ever. He has looked tired at times during this busy year, but his good health today and his high spirits are the talk of those who come in close contact with him.

MIXES WORK AND PLAY.

He mixes work and fun. A few minutes after quitting his desk he can be heard laughing and frolicking in the nearby swimming pool in a "ducking" contest with Gus Genrich, his bodyguard. "He is a great 'kiddie' and, especially, Louis Howe, Martin H. McIntyre, 'Steve' Early and Miss Marguerite Le Hand, are always on guard for a presidential joking."

The President has an almost complete knowledge of the incidents in the daily lives of his personal staff and an ability to surprise his callers frequently with his intimate knowledge of the many problems brought before him.

He is a careful reader of the newspapers, particularly those of his home state. Mr. Roosevelt invariably lingers in bed to eat breakfast, skim through the morning papers and chat with his immediate associates.

Secretary Morgenthau, Post-Master-General Farley, Lewis Douglas, director of the budget, Secretary Hull and his secretaries are among the most frequent of the early morning callers at the White House.

SPECIMEN WORKING DAY.

The President gets to his desk in the executive office for official business about 11 o'clock. He may begin his engagements for the day on time but he never keeps to schedule except when he has to catch a train or make a speech.

Once in his office he goes right on until 6 or 7 o'clock, invariably eating lunch from a tray on the desk, which he shares with the luncheon guest of the day.

Formal dinners are less frequent than usual. Mr. Roosevelt doesn't like them. He doesn't like formal dress.

Nights vary at the White House. There are occasional receptions, shows, as in the days of Presidents Coolidge and Hoover. There are almost always house guests, usually friends of the family.

Sometimes business is resumed at night conferences. The President retires between 11 and 12 o'clock and usually reads before turning out the light.

dictates own speeches.

Mr. Roosevelt puts off writing a speech until the last possible moment. His addresses are rarely longer than 20 minutes and he has established a record in the brevity of his messages to Congress—a record in the number he has sent.

He dictates his own speeches and messages and rarely changes them once they are on paper, although he often interpolates as he reads them.

Informality extends to his official correspondence. The other day he addressed Speaker Rainey in a letter on the bottom of "Dear Friends" and signed it "P. D. R." His letters accepting the resignations of Secretary Woodin and Raymond Moley were addressed "Dear Will" and "Dear Ray."

Mr. Roosevelt surprised newspapermen by establishing open press conferences, allowing a direct exchange of questions and answers. He seems to like to give and take of them examinations and here again "kidding" is mingled with the serious business of the hour.

He has submitted to press interviews on his schooner fog-bound in Lakeman's Bay, Maine; in his dusty automobile on a roadside in Warm Springs, Ga.; on his railroad private car; and at a luncheon table in the open air of a CCC camp on a Virginia mountain.

A Busy Year.

It has been a busy year—the banking holiday, a special session of Congress, abandonment of the gold standard, establishment of the NRA and the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, the London economic conference and war debts negotiations, the establishment of a new monetary system and many others.

Dr. R. T. McIntire, the White House physician, pronouncing Mr. Roosevelt in "fine shape," said today: "As a matter of fact, he has been a healthy year for the whole White House family. Even the Roosevelt grandchildren have had scarcely any ailments. There is no question in my mind that President Roosevelt is better today, in a general physical way, than he was when I first saw him in March of last year. He has gone through the year in fine shape. The reason for it, I think, and the best thing about it, is his general attitude on life—a cheerful, optimistic outlook, never expecting trouble."

ITALIAN BISHOP BARS DANCING.

PERUGIA, Italy.—The Bishop of the nearby town of Crotta has issued a pastoral letter in which he asks all faithful Catholics in the town to boycott dancing. The Bishop has directed priests to preach against the modern dances as immoral.

Judge Denies Fines of Fred W. Wolf, Millionaire.

GENEVA, Ill., March 2.—Holding that he had not yet recovered his sanity, Circuit Judge Frank W. Shepherd yesterday recommitted Fred W. Wolf, 52 years old, millionaire inventor, to the Elgin State Hospital. Wolf is an heir to the $2,000,000 estate left by his father, Frederick W. Wolf.

Charging that his wife "tricked" him into the asylum, Wolf began proceedings to gain his release in January, since which time he had been on parole to a friend. Judge Shepherd denied the writ of habeas corpus after being medical testimony.

NEW SOCIAL REGISTER BEING PROMOTED

Hundreds of St. Louisans Get Invitations to Submit Family Data.

Hundreds of St. Louisans, ranging from those whose names appear in the Social Register to some who have made only the telephone book, have received invitations recently to submit family data for inclusion in "The St. Louis Exclusive Social Register."

The register, it developed today, is a one-man promotion by O. L.

Hopper, originally of New York, but now of whatever city offers a promising field for publication of such a book.

Hopper, who is stopping at Hotel
Melbourne, said today to a Post-Dispatch reporter that he had been in the social register business for seven years, publishing registers in five cities, the last one in San Diego, Cal. His enterprise, he says, is in competition with the established
New York Social Register, which publishes its "blue book books" in several cities, including St. Louis.

Conceding that about 600 form letters of invitation have been distributed here, using lists of club members, and similar compilations, Hopper said a committee of six St.
Louis women "of authentic social prominence" have agreed to serve anonymously as an eligibility committee.

Manifestly, he said, it wouldn't do to make public their names but one of them is so prominent "she has streets named after her."

Nor would members of the "committee" receive compensation, other than a copy of the proposed local register, which Hopper plans to sell for $10 to those listed in it, if they want to buy it, and members of their families.

"Why, how could you compensate them for such a service," Hopper said, dapper in a blue suit, striped tie, snap brim hat, said, "except maybe send them copies of the register?"

The secret committee, he feels, guards against inclusion in the register of all who may submit data, admitting that it can't help it if somebody's club gets hold of a card." The committee, he added, has passed on "a few names" but by next week he anticipates having
"a couple of hundred."

Little Data Requested.

Data requested in the form letter for the committee's consideration is not extensive. Names, addresses, children, clubs and telephone numbers constitute information to be put on the "inclosed card of confidential record."

"Please be assured," the letter states, "that this information is not to be used for commercial or advertising purposes but for social refugees only. All names for 'The Register' are submitted and approved by our committee which is composed of the most socially prominent ladies of St. Louis."

While Hopper is soliciting advertisements, he said today that only a few firms catering to the register's clientele would be sought for inclusion in the book. His concept of a social register, he continued, would rid it of the cryptic symbols of the old established registers.

His register, he continued, would list data so that all might recall children would appear plainly under their names. And in the back of the book would be a handy reference table, so that the offices of

name stamped on the cover in

KILLED HUSBAND

MRS. LOTTIE SWINBANK,

WHO was charged with man-slaughter was held on $2500 bail following the fatal shooting of her husband, John J. Swinbank, Pittsburgh mechanical engineer, in Tucson, Arizona. Although a coroner's jury rendered a verdict of shooting in self-defense, she was charged by the District Attorney with man-slaughter and held for hearing March 6. Mrs. Swinbank pleaded self-defense, saying her husband had been drinking. The two went to Tucson with their two daughters to spend the winter, following the completion by the husband of several projects in Ohio and Pennsylvania.

RULES GOLD CONTRACT WORTH ONLY FACE VALUE IN PAPER

Colorado Court in Interpretation of Congressional Action Differs With Ohio Judge.

By the Associated Press.

FORT MORGAN, Colo., March 2.—Notwithstanding the cancellation by Congress of contract gold clauses, debts due in gold are not canceled but payments must be made if the gold is held, then "in whatever new medium the legal tender," Judge Arlington Taysor decided yesterday. The Judge ruled out any allowance for the difference in value in the gold called for under the contract and legal tender dollars.

L. L. Conrad and J. O. Conrad of Yuma, Ariz., had refused to pay interest on a mortgage note held by Howard Kennedy as trustee, contending the note required payment in gold and that there was no gold to had because the Government had declared a monopoly on the metal.

Common Pleas Judge John R. King of Columbus, O., last Tuesday ruled similarly that debts must be paid but he held, because of the difference in value in gold and currency, the debt would have to be paid in currency on the basis of the new increased value of gold. Thus, if a contract calls for payment of $100 gold, in Colorado the debtor may pay with $100 in paper money, while in Ohio he will have to pay with about $89 in paper.

REVIEW OF ROOSEVELT'S FIRST YEAR WITHDRAWN

Democratic National Committee Says It Wants to Avoid Propaganda This Time.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—The Democratic National Committee has withdrawn a review it prepared of President Roosevelt's first year in the White House, entitled "One Year's Record."

Charles Michelson, publicity director, made this explanation: "Because this story was issued through the offices of the Democratic National Committee and because the committee at this time is anxious to avoid the issuance of any statement which can be possibly construed as partisan propaganda detrimental to a united national effort for recovery, the release referred to is hereby withdrawn from publication."

$2700 BANK EMBEZZLER BEGINS TWO-YEAR TERM

Elmer B. Foerst Enters Prison on Same Day He Pleaded Guilty.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 2.—Elmer B. Foerst, 26-year-old bookkeeper for the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., who pleaded guilty in St. Louis yesterday of embezzling $2700, was dressed in at the penitentiary yesterday afternoon and began serving his two-year sentence. He will be eligible for parole in 14 months.

Foerst was brought here by his attorney, State Senator John Brogan, and Assistant Sheriff James F. Finsenmeier, immediately after sentence was passed. He said he wanted to start his term as soon as possible so he could return and again take up the support of his wife and child.

YOUNG WIFE GETS ANNULMENT

Mrs. Robert Stevens Says Husband Revealed Previous Marriage.

Mrs. Robert Stevens, 18 years old, 2626 Rauschenbach avenue, obtained annulment of her marriage in Circuit Judge Hoffmeyer's court yesterday. Stevens did not con-

She testified that she and Stevens had been drinking last Aug. 3 and did not realize when they were being married. They did not live together, she said, and the following Saturday Stevens told her he was already married. Her maiden name of Stevens was restored.

some sort of successful effort. Next came the enjoyment received from watching or hearing persons, things or characters. Other situations causing laughter, she found, were those in which the imagination or fancy was exercised; play on words, instantaneous relief from discomfort or constraint, oddities, teasing, upset dignity, absurdity and family thinking.

She found that in the schools, when the teacher is tired or cross the children quickly sense it and humorous situations do not arise readily, nor do the children respond as easily to them when they arise.

Second Childhood.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON.—If adults would indulge in humorous antics comparable to those of preschool children, the world would be a more pleasant place in which to live, according to the thesis of Miss Patricia A. Goodville, Boston University student.

Grown-ups take life too seriously when, instead, they should profit by the teachings of boys and girls from 2 to 4 years of age, according to the thesis. Everyone should have a second childhood.

Miss Goodville studied the reactions of small children to learn what factors caused their spontaneous mirth. The situation which most frequently caused laughter, she found, was the use of the child's own powers that resulted in mischievousness.

She found that in the schools,

when the teacher is tired or cross the children quickly sense it and humorous situations do not arise readily, nor do the children respond as easily to them when they arise.

TRAINMEN POSTPONE STRIKE ON KANSAS CITY SOUTHERN

Walkout Called Off When Line Agrees to Hold Up New Wage Scale Plan.

By the Associated Press
KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 2.—A strike of Kansas City Southern Railway trainmen and enginemen scheduled to become effective yesterday at 6 p. m. was postponed six hours before the deadline by an executive order from Cleveland, O., signed by D. B. Robertson, president of the Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen.

The walkout was ordered by the Executive Committee of the Big Four Railroad Brotherhood Wednesday when it appeared that a conference in Washington between C. E. Johnston, president of the Southern, and Joseph B. Eastman, Federal railroad co-ordinator, would fail to bring about a compromise. Later Johnston announced he had agreed not to put a new scale plan into effect until April 1.

IN DEATH OF W. H. MINER

Action Taken by Grand Jury in Case of Peter Prusick; Accident Occurred Feb. 16. A no true bill was voted yesterday in the case of Peter Prusick, 20-year-old chauffeur, by the grand jury which investigated the death of William Harvey Miner, well known book dealer, who died on Feb. 10 of injuries suffered when struck by an automobile driven by Prusick.

Prusick was held after a Coroner's inquest. At the time, Joseph Stratton, who was in the car with Prusick, testified that Miner stepped in front of an automobile into the path of Prusick's car.

WALL ST. 'TIPPED
OFF' ON AIR MAIL,
SENATORS HEARDOLFFUSS ABOLISHES
CONSTITUTION OF AUSTRIA, TO RULE BY "NATURAL LAW"

ST. LOUIS, FRIDAY, MARCH 2, 1934.

State's Right to Preserve Itself at All Costs Advanced as Justification for Action —Armistice with Nazis Reported.

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press.)

VIENNA, March 2.—For the first time since Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss shelved Parliament last year, the Austrian Government today frankly cast aside the Constitution and let it be known it is ruling by "natural law which stands above the Constitution."

The new basis of government was explained in the Official Gazette by Robert Hecht, an expert in constitutional law. He has advised Chancellor Dollfuss on the legal aspects of each step taken since rule by emergency decrees began.

Whether the destruction of Vienna's Socialist Municipal Government (elected by more than 60 per cent of the voters in 1932) is strictly legal or illegal "is not of decisive importance," Hecht said.

The Right to Exist.

"For," he added, "the state has the right to exist and its leaders are in duty bound to defend it without regard to legal—even constitutional—limitation."

"This law of state necessity," Hecht emphasized, "the words were double-spaced on page 1 of the official gazette" "has its roots in natural law and stands above the constitution."

The energetic statesmen heading the government will, of course, have greater respect for natural law than for a written constitution and—despite their legal responsibility—will risk personal ruin rather than permit the ruination of the state."

Fourteen members of the Socialist Central Committee, including Karl Seitz, the last Burgo-master of Vienna, were transferred this afternoon from the city jail to Vienna's provincial prison, where they will await trial for complicity in the civil war.

The semi-official Reichspost at that time explained: "Parliament abolished itself. Whatever might be done to reintroduce it would be against the law."

While the deputies nevertheless attempted to meet March 15, Dollfuss called police to drive them out.

One of the Cabinet's first steps after the recent civil war was to declare null and void the position and prerogatives of anyone elected on the Socialist ticket.

Yesterday, in the confiscated Vienna printing plant where the official Austrian Socialist Party "Arbeiter Zeitung" was published until the civil strife, the government made arrangements to resume publication under the direction of the official Austrian News Agency.

PWA LEGAL BOARD FAVORS ST. LOUIS HOSPITAL GRANTJ. W. McAfee Says Application for $463,000 Fund Will Be Finally Passed on Tuesday.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—J. W. McAfee, legislative representative of St. Louis, said today the city's application for $463,000 for the construction of a new Marine Hospital and addition to the existing hospital had been approved by the legal division of the Public Works Administration.

The application will come before the general PWA board Tuesday for a final decision. McAfee appeared before the Public Works Administration officials in behalf of the project, accompanied by Representative Claitorne.

MEXICAN EXPORT MONEY TAX

Two to Four Pct. Levy Is Put Into Effect.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO, D. F., March 2.—Banks and other agencies of foreign exchange were thrown into confusion yesterday with application of the new "absentee tax," levying from 2 to 4 per cent on money sent off Mexico.

An official note to Great Britain then will be drafted by Premier Gaston Doumergue's "Military Directory," composed of War Minister Petain, Air Minister Denain and Naval Minister Pietri with Foreign Minister Louis Barthou attending.

Kline Quits Illinois Senate.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 2.—The resignation of Senator E. P. Kline, East St. Louis Democrat, was received today. Kline, who has represented the Forty-ninth Senatorial District since 1930, was recently appointed Postmaster of East St. Louis. His term would not have expired until next January.

St. Lawrence Treaty Vote March 14.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—The Senate made great strides yesterday toward clearing its program of controversial legislation by reaching agreements to vote on the naval construction bill Tuesday and the St. Lawrence waterway treaty March 14.

The congressional support of the President, Thomas said, is as widespread as ever, but criticism against the efforts and measures of his administration is heard on all sides and even from those who swear by him personally.

"Mr. Roosevelt has extraordinary ability," the 1932 presidential candidate of the Socialists said, "and the failure of his measures to solve our problems only shows the utter, hopeless futility of trying to salvage anything at all out of the capitalistic system."

"Your argument," Pecora countered, "would imply that the commission is deprived of a sense of fairness and mentality and would not to exercise its powers in a more vicious way. You could give that argument against any public office as an argument against the creation of any public office."

"We do not say that the commission would act in that way, but we do say the power is there," said Edmund.

Exchange Counsel Called.

Whitney called on Roland Redmond, counsel for the exchange, to elaborate this view and the latter explained that this was done because Whitney's statement was based on the attorney's interpretation of the view.

"By regulating the form and content," he said, "the Federal Trade Commission could require the inclusion of anything that it wanted to. That affects a club under the head of management. The commission could demand daily reports with its officers liable both criminally and civilly. It is a weapon that would allow the control of corporations."

"Your argument," Pecora countered, "would imply that the commission is deprived of a sense of fairness and mentality and would not to exercise its powers in a more vicious way. You could give that argument against any public office as an argument against the creation of any public office."

"We do not say that the commission would act in that way, but we do say the power is there," said Edmund.

WEALTHY LOUISIANA OIL MAN INDICTED ON U. S. TAX CHARGER. L. Gay, Described as Political Friend of Senator Long, Accused of Evasion.

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 2.—Government officials here yesterday announced indictment by the Federal grand jury of R. L. Gay, wealthy Zwolle (La.) oil man, on charges of income tax evasion.

Gay was said to be a close political friend of Senator Huey P. Long.

The indictment charged that Gay on April 15, 1931, in New Orleans did wilfully, knowingly, and feloniously attempt to evade and beat a large part, to wit, $63,857 a tax upon his net income for the calendar year 1930.

TWO BRITONS ARE KILLED
BY TUNGAN TRIBESMENConsulate Stormed in Search for Enemy Turkis at Kashgar in Eastern Chinese Turkestan.

By the Associated Press.

PEKING, China, March 2.—Two British subjects were killed and four were wounded in Kashgar, Eastern Chinese Turkestan. Thursday when savage Tungan tribesmen attacked their Turkis enemies.

dispatches said today.

The Tungans stormed into Kashgar, the capital of Sinkiang province and then attacked the British consulate, the advice said. When the Tungans entered the British property seeking Turkis they thought to be hidden there it was subjected to a constant crossfire of Many Turkis were mercilessly slaughtered, it was reported. The invaders combed streets and made a house-to-house search, killing their enemies wherever they found them. The Tungans recently took over civil and military control of South Sinkiang on behalf of the national government.

Carpenters have finished building a wooden fence around what is left of the monument to the Austrian republic, and painters have covered it with green. A neat sign was tacked on the boards—"Post no bills here."

About Face From Year Ago.

It was just a year ago Sunday that the Austrian government "paralyzed itself" with the legal technicality of the resignation of its presiding officers and the Dollfuss government took the position it would be illegal and unconstitutional for parliament to continue legislating.

The semi-official Reichspost at that time explained: "Parliament abolished itself. Whatever might be done to reintroduce it would be against the law."

While the deputies nevertheless attempted to meet March 15, Dollfuss called police to drive them out.

One of the Cabinet's first steps after the recent civil war was to declare null and void the position and prerogatives of anyone elected on the national starvation Government."

Yesterday, in the confiscated Vienna printing plant where the official Austrian Socialist Party "Arbeiter Zeitung" was published until the civil strife, the government made arrangements to resume publication under the direction of the official Austrian News Agency.

Pecora Calls Whitney's Assertion
"Fantastic Ghost."

Wall street's contention that the stock exchange control bill would give the Government "absolute control" over private corporations was challenged by Pecora in the examination of Whitney yesterday.

"I think that is the most fantastic kind of a ghost," Pecora said after Whitney had expressed this view.

Provisions of the Fletcher-Rayburn control measure giving the Federal Trade Commission power to prescribe the form and content of financial reports by corporations were "so onerous and all embracing" that Whitney testified, "as to give the commission complete control over all corporations."

"You think the power to impose forms of accounting is equivalent to giving control?" Pecora asked.

"In combination with other sections of the bill, yes."

"I seriously and emphatically challenge that statement," the committee counsel said.

Exchange Counsel Called.

Whitney called on Roland Redmond, counsel for the exchange, to elaborate this view and the latter explained that this was done because Whitney's statement was based on the attorney's interpretation of the view.

"By regulating the form and content," he said, "the Federal Trade Commission could require the inclusion of anything that it wanted to. That affects a club under the head of management. The commission could demand daily reports with its officers liable both criminally and civilly. It is a weapon that would allow the control of corporations."

"Your argument," Pecora countered, "would imply that the commission is deprived of a sense of fairness and mentality and would not to exercise its powers in a more vicious way. You could give that argument against any public office as an argument against the creation of any public office."

STAVISKY CHECK
STUBS RECOVERED;
HIS WIDOW HELD

Slips Show Names of Many

Recipients of Payments in $40,000,000 Swindle in France.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, March 2.—The Secret Service announced today that it had gained possession of check stubs of the $40,000,000 swindler, Serge Stavisky, showing the names of the many recipients of "bearer" checks made out by the swindler. At the same time and in the same connection, it was announced that the swindler's widow, Mme. Arlette Stavisky, was arrested today.

The police had long sought the check stubs in their efforts to identify those who had received millions of dollars from Stavisky. The swindler also cashed millions of dollars worth of checks which he made out to himself.

The police said they had recovered the stubs from "a personage," but did not give the name. They said Mme. Stavisky, on the day after her husband either committed suicide or was killed in a villa at Chamonix, gave the stubs to a friend. From the hands of the friend they reached the "personage."

Ex-Premier Gets Check Stubs.

The stubs were delivered to former Premier Albert Sarraut yesterday after last midnight by Bony, one of the chief secretaries of the service, who was suspended recently for alleged laxity in the Stavisky case. Bony had promised to deliver the stubs.

Sarraut and the Minister of Justice, Henry Cheran, agreed that Bony should be permitted to resume duty for a few hours and sent important officials to his house where, in the presence of the "personage" the stubs were examined until 2 a. m.

Stavisky, Russian-born citizen of France, organized the Bayonne municipal bank and pawnshop, a quasi-governmental institution, while he was under formal charges of fraud made in 1928. The fraud charges never went to trial; 10 sentences were given to all. When the bank collapsed last Dec. 30, it was disclosed that Stavisky had issued bonds of the bank $40,000,000 in excess of the legal limit. Stavisky fled into hiding. He was found by secret service agents at Chamonix Jan. 8. Secret service men said he shot and killed himself. Paris newspapers charged that the secret service men had killed him for fear he would name political higher-ups in his affairs. In the ensuing scandal, Premier Camille Chautemps and his Cabinet were forced to resign. Premier Edouard Daladier also had to resign after bloody rioting in the Place de la Concorde.

Once Arrested With Stavisky.

Before her marriage, Stavisky's widow was Mme. Arlette Simon. She was the second wife of the founder of the Bayonne municipal pawnshop, and the mother of his two children. She was married to him soon after both were arrested in a raid on a gay dinner party in a Parisian suburb in 1926. Later she was cleared of the charges on which she was held after the raid. The present investigation, being carried on by two parliamentary committees, centers about the failure of the French courts to try Stavisky on charges of swindling and receiving stolen property which caused his arrest at that time.

Persons owing debts and other foreign money for export were forced to sign an agreement that they would be responsible in event the transfers were subject to tax. Demand for foreign exchange fell off sharply.

March Liquor Import Quotas.

St. Lawrence Treaty Vote March 14.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—The Emperor Kang Teh, putting aside his dragon robes, wore an American sack suit and smoked American cigarettes today as he began his reign over the 34,000,000 in the Japanese-created State of Manchukuo.

After an afternoon nap, the Emperor lost no time in plunging again into the many tasks confronting him. He placed the new imperial jade seal on state papers, chatted with his Premier and tutor, Cheng Hsiao-hsu, and read congratulatory telegrams. He smoked cigarettes incessantly.

In the evening he heard a wireless description of his enthronement before finally retiring at midnight. With an American set, he picked up Nanking, Shanghai, Manila and Tokio.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight the drosses of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Fears We Are Riding for a Fall.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

OUR editorial entitled "Putting the Farmer in a Strait-Jacket," in my humble opinion, touches upon the very root of the evil days that have befallen this land of promise and over-production.

With all due respect to our courageous President, does it not appear that the industries and the job they supply are being, or will be, gradually cut out of existence to pay millions to the unemployed for doing unnecessary things and to the needs of farmers for destroying the "fruits of this land of Canaan," while millions continue in want in the midst of plenty? Eventually there will be no business to be taxed and nobody will have a job. Is not that the direction of our present Don Quixote ride?

Has not the ultra-protection of industry and the organization of market manipulators destroyed the economic balance and made it impossible for the farmer to sell at a price which enables him to buy the product of the factory? Consequently, these two factors have killed the buying power of the farmer and the goose that laid the golden egg for all of us.

WILLIAM R. SCHNEIDER.

Would Restrict Pulpit to Religion.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
IN your editorial, "Realism in the Pulpit," you praise the forthright utterances of the noonday speaker at Christ Church Cathedral.

Well might one say: What a precious state of affairs! The Christian church is safe with a Christian preacher can find no other subject to talk about than "present-day social problems" before a Lenten audience.

Would that Christ were preached in modern-day Christian pulpits rather than discussions of the political and social progress of the world.

J. V. EGAN.

Fort Smith, Ark.

To Simplified Spelling.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
A last somebody has acquired courage enough to denounce Webster. And we can be grateful to none other than the Chicago Tribune for launching S. S. (simplified spelling). But unfortunately, as in all noble causes, objections are to be presented, some of which are quite legitimate.

Take, for example, such words as "sheer" (sheeroy?) and "monosyllable" (monosyllable?). Even after their unmasking, they would still be too long for some of our smaller children. There remain only two alternatives. First, we can abolish clairvoyants and repeat monosyllables. However, clairvoyants and monosyllables might insist upon their niche in society. In that case, we must resort to the second plan.

Now little Junior has always enjoyed books in which there were "pitchers." Why not devise a picture for each word? Think of the appeal. Children would be reading magazines and newspapers before they could talk. And thereafter, on rainy evenings, little Junior could be found on the living room floor, absorbed in "Paul of Gertrude Stein with undoubt (it's getting me) zeal."

FOCUS.

Dr. Johnson vs. Bishop Berkeley.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
REFERRING to Mr. Erisbey's assertion that there is no sound where there is no ear, etc.:

He may have referred to Berkeley's philosophical theory that there is no matter and, consequently, no physical causes. This theory is, of course, absurd, but cannot be refuted, notwithstanding the classical attempt of Dr. Johnson to disprove it, as related by James Boswell:

"We stood talking for some time together of Bishop Berkeley's ingenious sophistry to prove the non-existence of matter, and that everything in the world is merely ideal (existing in the mind). I observed that though we were satisfied his doctrine is not true, it is impossible to refute it. I never shall forget the alacrity with which Johnson answered, striking his foot with mighty force against a large stone, till he rebounded from it; 'I refute it thus!'

M. LEON.

Suggestion to the P. S. Co.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
THIS concerns the views of Public Service Co. patrons from the South Side, who take No. 105 Gravos bus. It is not individual, but has been gathered from the conversations in the daily throng since the system has been in operation.

It would help immeasurably to extend this route to Twelfth and Washington, thereby saving much valued time wasted in transferring to Twelfth and Market to the Compton car, only to ride five blocks, and then to transfer for another measly ride or to walk in disgust over the numerous transfers necessary. What a carnival of rides!

This extension is logical, as it will, first, prevent the company from losing future business through more adaptable accommodations that are stepping in line, to accommodate the Washington avenue business thoroughfare; second, it would more readily attract daily shoppers; third, the evening crowds to and from the theaters would have a more handy and speedier service.

You will have nothing to lose and all to gain by serving the South Side in a complete and courteous manner.

A PATRON.

WHO'LL DO THE REGULATING?

Regulation of the stock exchanges is coming. It has got to come. Everyone who has spoken on the subject admits that Richard Whitney, head of the New York Stock Exchange, agrees with Ferdinand Pecora that regulation is imperative. The question is, Who'll do the regulating?

The Fletcher-Rayburn bill proposes to put the regulatory power in the Federal Trade Commission. Mr. Whitney protests. He thinks the proposal is unconstitutional. He has brought a lawyer to Washington to brief that point. If the unconstitutional objection is overruled, Mr. Whitney has others to offer—plenty of them.

The Government, in his opinion, cannot regulate the stock market. He compares the Fletcher-Rayburn bill to the defunct eighteenth amendment. Reminded that the latter was a sumptuary law, his answer is that the regulatory bill is a prohibitive law. Carrying out the figure, he predicts a swarm of bucket shops, should the pending bill be passed. The bucket shop, he declares, has already appeared.

Speaking for his own market, Mr. Whitney insists that the only agency that can regulate the New York Stock Exchange is the New York Stock Exchange itself. That it has failed, magnificently, to do any regulating which would seriously cramp its style does not seem to perturb Mr. Whitney. Indeed, the man is imperturbable. Interrogatory Washington has, perhaps, never met a cooler cucumber. In poise, serenity and inscrutability, Mr. Whitney divides honors, about fifty-fifty, with a bronze Buddha.

And it may be that the Buddhas, like the Bourbons, never learn. After the dizzy climb of the boom market, and the nose-dive into Averns, it does seem as if the New York Stock Exchange, or its board of governors, or those "glorified gamblers," the floor traders, who, some say, really run the show—it does seem as if ordinary prudence would have persuaded them to have forsaken some of the most abusive practices in the black art of fleecing that credulous legion, otherwise known as the innocent investor. No chastening light has delivered them from temptation.

One of the meanest, though efficient, devices for fleecing the public is the pool, operated in collusion with the specialist. Some of our notable financiers, as we have learned, got a lot richer by that kind of maneuvering back in those golden days when everyone was getting rich. The marketeers are still at it. Anyhow, they were at it as late as last July, when they staged that glittering tableau, as told by the New York Evening Post:

In Washington, he (Smoot) owns choice property sites and is chairman of the Public Buildings Commission, which supervised the laying out of the $75,000,000 District of Columbia building program. As a member of the Senate Public Buildings and Grounds Committee, he is in position to work quietly for enhancement of his land values. He is chairman of the dominating Finance Committee, where he labors ceaselessly for high tariffs for his woolen and sugar mills, and for low income taxes for himself and the Mormon Church. Over a period of many years he has built up a dynasty of officeholders in the capital so extensive that it, rivals that of the President.

of Russian whiskers from time immemorial. And what's more, man, proud man, has once again risen in his majesty to fling defiance into the teeth of tyranny.

GOVERNMENT BY SMOOT.

For many years, Reed Smoot, ranking Apostle of the Mormon Church, sat in the United States Senate exuding piety and holiness. Behind the scenes, this sanctimonious personage was one of the most grasping and scheming politicians that ever lived.

A fine story it was that came out of Washington Wednesday. Smoot's son, Ernest, while drawing $325 a year as a Government employee, was retained by Western Air Express as a lobbyist. And his task was to induce the Government to continue payments on an air mail contract, questioned by the Comptroller-General because the contract had not been let to the low bidder.

When the Comptroller-General decided to let the payments continue, Ernest sent his bill for $15,000. Western Air Express did not think he was worth that much, and paid him $2500. Also, while on the payroll of the Government, Smoot represented other "clients." Altogether, in 1929, young Smoot received more than $19,750 compensation from private individuals and companies for work whose nature he did not make clear. Pretty good picking for a $325-a-year clerk.

Such highly improper activity surprises no one who has followed the career of the elder Smoot. That gentleman tirelessly used his official position to advance his own interests. We quote from the Pearson-Allen book, "More Merry-Go-Round," published while Smoot was still a member of the Senate:

In Washington, he (Smoot) owns choice property sites and is chairman of the Public Buildings Commission, which supervised the laying out of the $75,000,000 District of Columbia building program. As a member of the Senate Public Buildings and Grounds Committee, he is in position to work quietly for enhancement of his land values. He is chairman of the dominating Finance Committee, where he labors ceaselessly for high tariffs for his woolen and sugar mills, and for low income taxes for himself and the Mormon Church. Over a period of many years he has built up a dynasty of officeholders in the capital so extensive that it, rivals that of the President.

Small wonder that Ernest, watching Apostle Reed's marvelous way of causing the Government to work for his personal interests, should follow his example.

MANNA FOR THE BIRDS.

The St. Louis Humane Society is paying an old debt—one that goes back something like 2700 years. The ravens brought bread and flesh to Elijah when food was unobtainable in Gilead, and now the Humane Society has, for the second time this winter, sent an airplane over St. Louis County to scatter food for the birds. Yesterday 500 pounds of grain were dropped on fields whose heavy covering of snow still shut off the natural food sources of the many birds which have remained through the winter.

How many varieties there are in this section now can be judged from the report of a Southern Illinois observer who, in a short walk near Mt. Vernon, noted no less than 18 kinds, including meadow larks, mocking birds, flickers, sapsuckers, cardinals, mourning doves, chickadees, brown wrens, red headed woodpeckers and robins (43 of the latter!). The old idea that all the birds go South each fall is like the popular notion that it takes a frost to color the leaves. It just isn't so. Nail a small feeding board to the top of a post in the back yard and place some table scraps on it. Likely as not, the first caller will be a feathered songster which hasn't been as far south as Carondelet.

A SEA SERPENT DEBUNKED.

Four scientists are so dogmatic as to say there are no sea serpents extant, and can be none. The chief obstacle to definite conclusions about the species, however, has been that none of the reported monsters hold still long enough for close examination. The accounts, differ as they may in descriptive details, coincide on one point: the gigantic creature flashed above the waves for an instant, and then—splash!—was gone. There seemed a chance to study one of them in a state of quiescence yesterday, when a "strange monster" was washed up on a beach near Cherbourg. It was about 25 feet long, four and a half feet around, and had, averred the fisherfolk, a head like a camel, a neck like a horse, and a long tail. Under a naturalist's cool scrutiny, however, the thing became nothing more supernatural than a dead bottle-nosed whale.

There is hardly an individual in St. Louis who has not been affected, in some way or other, by the development of the amazing year just closing. Does what has happened constitute recovery? Let's leave that for the moment to the statisticians. Perhaps we Americans are an over-sanguine people; perhaps we shut our ears to the raucous warnings of the rain crow, preferring the warbling of the blue bird. But when did despair ever win a battle?

We may differ about the Brain Trust, alphabet soup, Gen. Johnson, repeat, the 59-cent dollar, stock market regulation and other aspects of the New Deal, but no reasonable person can deny that the gloom which gripped the country March 4 last has been dispelled. Ask the man to whom the year brought a job, the man whose home has been saved, the man whose business has shown a steady increase.

Mayor Dickmann is to be commended for calling for public rejoicing over our gains. Let's say, in the language of the war communiqué, that we have advanced 25 kilometers over a wide front. Our ultimate objective is as yet far beyond, but it has been a good year's work. We can permit ourselves the luxury of contemplating it for a moment before pushing on.

Mr. Ford announces a price cut. Along the motor front, it is to be war to the knife.

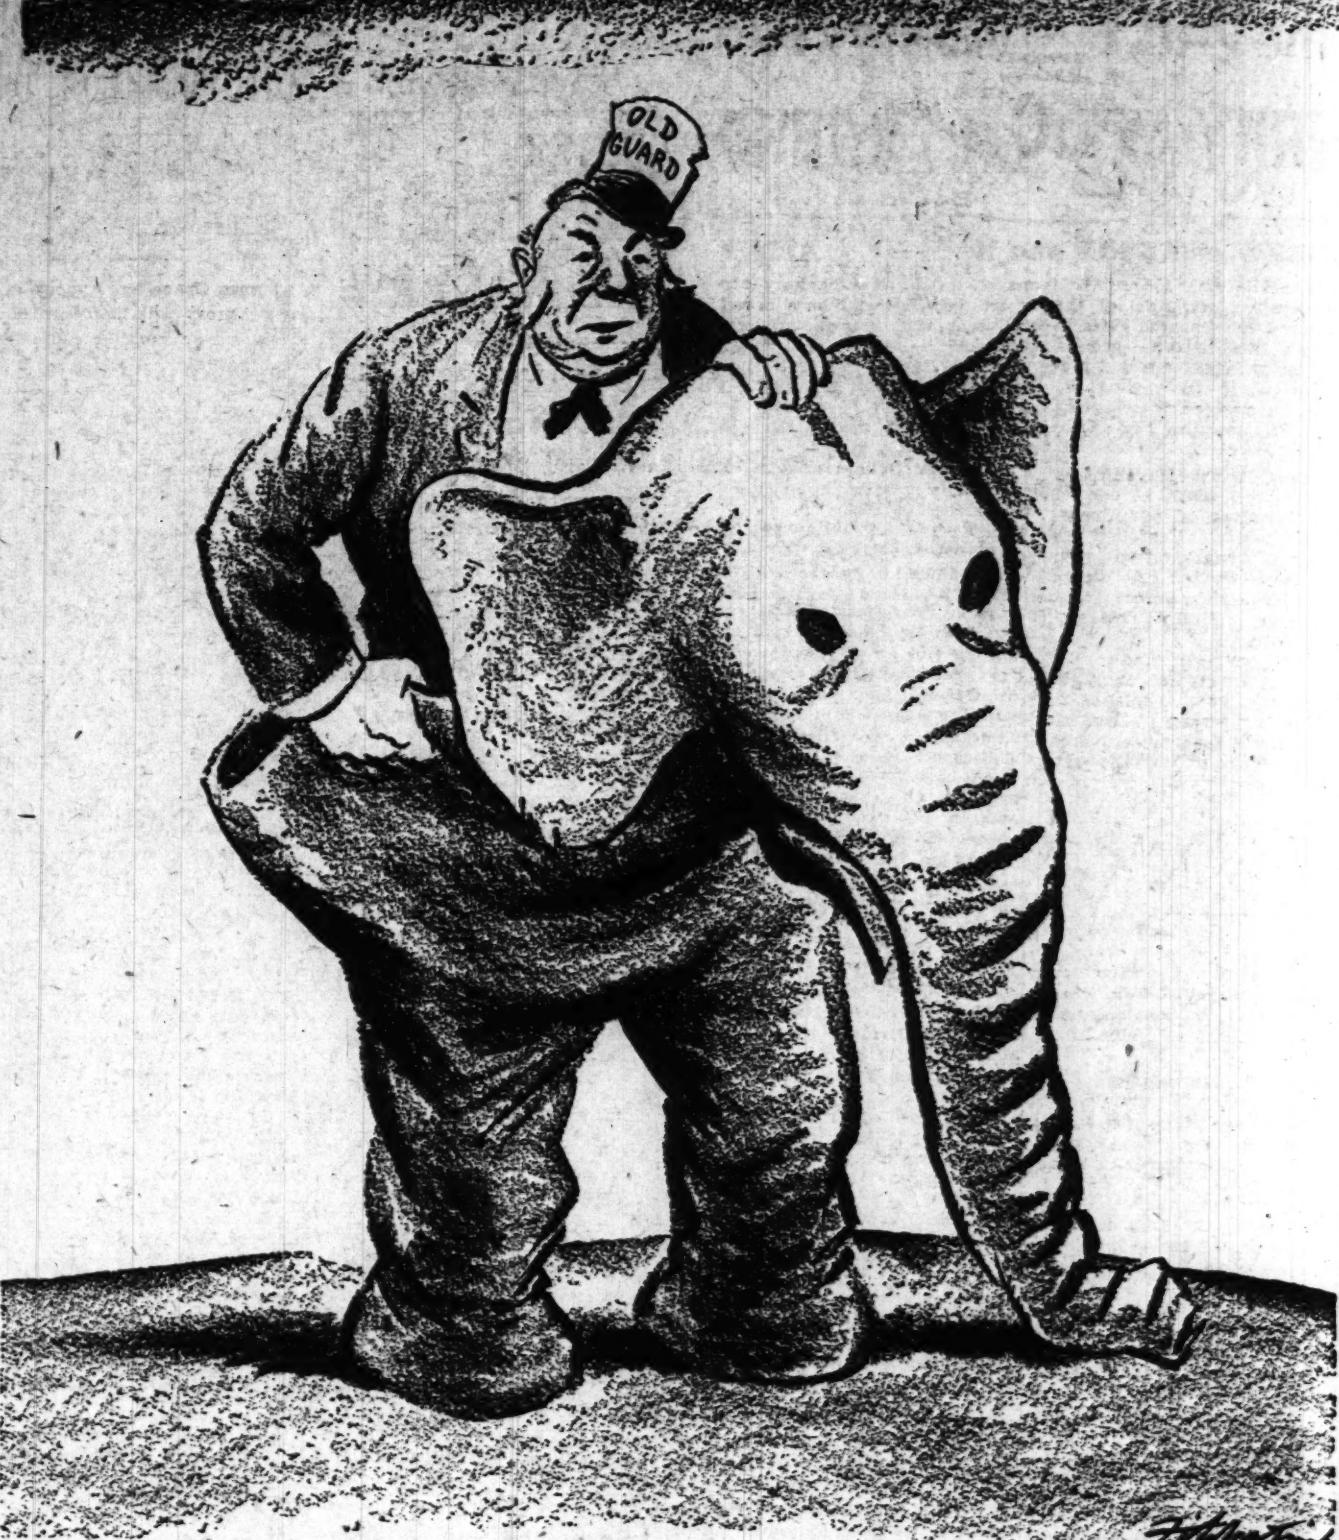

REBUILDING OLD WILLIAMSBURG.

America has been all too negligent of its historic sites, and the restoration of Williamsburg, Va., now nearing completion, should serve to remind other regions of their forgotten treasures. A special meeting of the Virginia Legislature was held a few days ago to mark the opening of the reconstructed capitol building, complete to the last item of furniture, just as it stood in colonial days. Old records were consulted so that the decorations and furnishings might be historically accurate. Paneling, woodwork, the Governor's walnut seat, the oak chairs, the British arms, all are restored to the same setting in which Patrick Henry's eloquent voice woke the echoes. The dignified building itself is of brick made by hand, as was the original structure of 1705. The chief donor to this project was John D. Rockefeller Jr., who gave $5,000,000 toward restoring the town to its appearance in colonial days. It is an investment that will make our country's early history more vivid and meaningful to every visitor, and must stimulate other communities to similar reconstructions of departed scenes.

Thus far and no farther can tyranny go. There were whispers against Comrade Vosko, that demon for sanitation. The whispers became roars. They pierced the Kremlin walls, reached that inner compartment where sits the man of steel who rules over Russia's destinies. We do not like to accuse him of trembling with apprehension. At any rate, bells rang, messengers hustled, orders were written and dispatched. Result: Comrade Vosko was summarily fired from his job and thrown into prison.

Now whistlers wave proudly in the wind on Nevsky Prospect, and cosily shelter last year's birds' nests, and do all the things that have been the privilege of Russian whiskers from time immemorial. And what's more, man, proud man, has once again risen in his majesty to fling defiance into the teeth of tyranny.

The NRA Re-Examined

VEN at the risk of qualifying as one of those critics of the NRA who, according to Gen. Johnson, "stand as far removed in practice" from what is going on in Washington as a mail order and correspondence school cowboy from the sweat and effort of a Wyoming round-up? I venture to express my opinion.

It is no doubt true that the Blue Eagle campaign last summer was a remarkable achievement, both in the sweat and effort expended and in the general result, to a Wyoming round-up. But on the whole, it seems to me that the sweat and effort have been worth while and that the round-up of industries and the promotion of new ideals of business conduct has been a prodigious achievement.

In a remarkably short time, Gen. Johnson has organized the most individualistic business community in the world; has created instrumentalities of co-operation and control, and has won assent to the principle that industrial management is affected with the public interest.

But it is one thing to organize, to create a scheme of industrial government, and to obtain assent to a general principle. It is another to apply the principle effectively and to govern well. This cannot be done, I believe, except on a fundamental question of public policy.

Gen. Johnson posed the problem in his statement of Feb. 17, when he spoke of "protection against the ruinous effects of destructive competition on the one hand, and against excessive prices and discouraged efficiencies on the other." In so far as I have been able to observe the operation of the NRA, it has gone a good way toward dealing with destructive competition, but it has not yet begun seriously to deal with excessive prices and discouraged efficiencies.

The effective parts of the codes are those which fix minimum conditions of labor in order to limit destructive competition in labor costs, and the rules of fair practice, which limit cutthroat selling methods. But on the side of excessive prices, the problem is quite seriously still undetermined.

Gen. Johnson's speech on the subject of the NRA, in which he said that the "NRA has done a good job," was surely accurate. The NRA has gone a good way toward dealing with destructive competition, but it has not yet begun seriously to deal with excessive prices and discouraged efficiencies.

It is a fallacy to think that the only way to distribute purchasing power is through money wages. If high money wages mean high prices, as they do, for example, on the railroads and in the building industry, they limit consumption and promote unemployment.

Moreover, high money wages plus high prices are possible only in quasi-monopolistic trades, and that means they are maintained at the expense of the farmers, the unorganized workers and the workers in industries which are not sheltered from competition.

I must confess that it is easier to state the problem than to solve it. I do not know how monopolistic prices can best be broken down. Forty years' experience under the Sherman Act does not indicate that the present there is encouraging. On the other hand, regulation looks like a hopeless undertaking, to be considered only as a last resort. Possibly the solution may lie in greater publicity of corporate accounts, combined with a new Sherman or Clayton Act, and some new method of enforcement, conveniently through the use of the taxing power on excess profits.

But while the solution is, to my mind, at least, very unclear, the existence of the problem of monopolistic prices is ineluctable.

It is the master problem of NRA, and the answer which is given will, I believe, make NRA effective in the future.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON, March 2. THE executive personnel of the Treasury Department divides itself into two distinct groups. There are Morgenthau men and pre-Morgenthau men. In most cases the difference between them is the difference between the New Deal and the Old.

The story of Henry Morgenthau's Treasury housecleaning is one of the most revealing of the Roosevelt Administration. He found his department a bulwark of moneyed powers in the swarthy rule of the Harding-to-Hoover regime, was, "More talk." Every Treasury official listened.

The idea continued under Mr. Woodin. His appointees, most of them politicos, swore allegiance to the Mellon-Mills creed. Morgenthau therefore bucked not only the old-line Republicans, but the old-line Democrats as well.

Morgenthau Men.

A chief lieutenant in this drive, Young Henry brought in Herman Oliphant, former dean of law at Johns Hopkins. Felix Frankfurter of the Harvard law school, who has dictated a score of Roosevelt's legal appointments, kicked like a wounded bull when Oliphant got the job. But Herman has been as liberal as Felix himself.

Nominally Oliphant is "legal adviser" to Morgenthau. Actually he is under-secretary. By and large he is an excellent one. Occasionally he gets a little panic-stricken about the threats of Wall Street revolt against Government bonds. Sometimes he is not as hard-boiled about securities as are Progressive Senators would like him to be. But for the most part he is a hard-hitting, sure-shot right arm to Young Henry.

Herbert E. Gaston, left arm of Young Henry, was just as unpopular as his chief when first he took office. On him fell part of the blame of Morgenthau's press censorship. He was press liaison officer. He was stereotyped and technical. He made mistakes, and with them enemies. But gradually Gaston has learned the ropes and whipped himself into an efficient cog in the Treasury machine. Actually he is more than a press officer. He is Morgenthau's confidential secretary and policy adviser.

An old Bull Mooser and La Follette man, Gaston spent several years as editor of Non-Partisan League publications.

HE Chicago Medical Society cannot be mothered by the blab-blab of Chicago newspapermen, or be made to make a hole deeper in its wealth history look white the sake of a "world's fair." For the executive council of the society issues a report severely criticising the way Chicago authorities handled the outbreak of epidemic dysentery there last summer.

Chicago has a difficult problem, admitted when the disease was discovered at the height of the Century of Progress. Thousands of visitors were coming from all over the country, and obviously some might be infected and choose to remain at home if they got into the news. Just the same, the only honest thing to do was to let people know of the hazard, to think of and not of dollars.

Instead, news was withheld, even while source and extent of the infection was undetermined. People were allowed to the very hotel where the plague exploded, unknowingly. Some of them contracted the disease, carried it back to their home communities throughout the country, some of them died. Amoebic dysentery spread to the four corners of the United States.

After much undercover work had been done, and the fair was drawing to a close, there was public announcement. It is impossible to escape the conclusion that this is timed. And after that came blasts of publicity as to what a wonderful thing Chicago's Health Commissioner, Dr. Bunesen, had done, and how Chicago had heroically fought the invader, apparently with the might of next summer's fair.

Now come the doctors to burst that bubble. They say there was concealment, failing to warn of grave danger, resulting in spreading of the sickness that might have been checked, with a saving of life. And they say that as medical men, sworn to certain medical standards, they cannot condone such a thing.

We honor the Chicago Medical Society for courage and truthfulness.

monopolistic industries at the expense of all others. This was demonstrated in the boom, when the average of commodity prices was stable for some years, but, owing to the failure of monopolistic prices to fall, purchasing power was very badly distributed. It may be said, I think, that the ideal of Adam Smith's "world's fair" unless individual prices, including, I believe, railroads and utility rates, were rates in highly monopolistic industries and monopolistic industries, are made flexible again. To make the dollar stable, and leave basic prices rigid, is to invite profit inflation, misinvestment of surplus profits and insufficiency of consumer purchasing power.

I must confess that it is easier to state a problem than to solve it. I do not know how monopolistic prices can best be broken down. Forty years' experience under the Sherman Act does not indicate that the problem there is encouraging. On the other hand, regulation looks like a hopeless undertaking, to be considered only as a last resort, possibly the solution may lie in greater publicity of corporate accounts, combined with a writing of the Sherman Act, and some new method of enforcement, conceivably through the use of the taxing power on excess profits.

But while the solution is, to my mind, least, very unclear, the existence of the problem of monopolistic prices is indubitable. It is the greatest problem of NRA, and the answer which is given will, I believe, make RA or break it.

THOMAS CRANE YOUNG, NOTED ARCHITECT, DIES

Designed Outstanding Buildings Here and in Other Cities; 76 Years Old.

Thomas Crane Young, one of the city's most distinguished and widely known architects, died early today of heart disease at Barnes Hospital after an illness of 10 days. Wednesday was his seventy-sixth birthday.

Mr. Young formed the partnership of Eames & Young in 1888 and continued alone, retaining the firm name after the death of William S. Eames in 1915. He had achieved a national reputation in his profession through the originality of his designs in varying types of architecture, including public and commercial buildings, and residences.

Among structures which he designed, or collaborated in designing, are the Federal prisons at Leavenworth, Kan., and Atlanta. The Cupples Tunnel, which he designed after the death of William S. Eames in 1915. He had achieved a national reputation in his profession through the originality of his designs in varying types of architecture, including public and commercial buildings, and residences.

Mr. Young was born in Sheboygan, Wis., and received his formal education at Washington University, St. Louis.

He resided at Hotel Chase and had offices in the Arcade Building.

Surviving are his second wife, Mrs. Helen, and three daughters by his first wife, the former Miss Ruth Hodges.

The daughters are Mrs. William B. Jones of Webster Groves, Mrs. Samuel A. Mitchell of St. Louis and Mrs. Donald McGilvray of Pasadena, Calif.

Many Similar Celebrations.

Most of the 250,000 Camp Fire Girls of the country were gathered at similar celebrations—at teas in the Middle West and lunches in the far West, so they could hear Mrs. Roosevelt talk over the radio.

An elderly woman who caused the Camp Fire Girls much consternation by "holding on" to Mrs. Roosevelt in the receiving line was discovered to be Mrs. James Roosevelt, the President's mother. Mrs. Roosevelt was welcomed at the Camp Fire celebration by girls in white middies, red ties and dark skirts, and by interested mothers. She is chairman of the national advisory council.

A pottery bowl made by Stella Park, 12, Los Angeles, was presented to her. She carried this away with her, but left behind, for a series of "hidden hunger" cake. Margery was an accomplished cake-baker. It was said, and had gone down into the hotel kitchen and iced this creation herself.

Hobbies and Citizenship.

Mrs. Roosevelt said over the radio that hobbies, which have been the occupation of Camp Fire Girls this year, make people into useful citizens.

"I have a husband who has so many hobbies I don't know which to mention," she said. "A many-sided person is apt to develop many hobbies."

"Hobbies may be messy around the house, but they do something to develop a child's personality and character. These must be developed because youth today is entering life under more difficulties than ever before. The more young people develop hobbies through which to express themselves and act creatively, the more confidence they will have of their own ability to make do."

The Camp Fire celebration came in the middle of a busy day for Mrs. Roosevelt. In the morning she visited the Buckley School, where her son used to go, and taught her last civic class of the year at the Todhunter School. She wound up her day by sitting in on the formation of a New York committee of the Institute of Women's Professional Relations.

MAN 'WEAKER SEX', MAYO DOCTORS SAY

Less Resistant to Certain Diseases Than Woman, Study Shows.

By the Associated Press.
ROCHESTER, Minn., March 2.—Statistics on file at the Mayo clinic here show that man is the "weaker sex."

Dr. William J. Mayo learned years ago that under certain circumstances and pertaining to certain diseases, man was less resistant than woman. Using this information as a basis, Dr. E. V. Allen and associates of the clinic studied 300,000 cases by checking the findings.

"Many will take exception to this statement," Dr. Allen said. "They will say that football players, track men, wrestlers and those who excel in feats of strength and endurance are almost uniformly males. But, physical prowess is but the outward habiment of physical superiority. A quality much better reflected is ability to withstand disease."

Comparison of Sickness.

The fact is, Dr. Allen said, that men are more frequently victims of diseases of the digestive tract, the lungs, kidneys, heart and brain, and functional diseases than are women.

He admits that women may be sick more often than men, but says their ailments are of lesser degree. Women are most commonly affected with nervous disorders and diseases, and cases of varicose veins and heart ailments.

Among reasons for the "inferiority" of men Dr. Allen lists overwork, alcoholism, "tobacco heart," industrial hazards and irregular habits of sleeping and eating.

Virtually every community, he says, shows more widows than dowagers.

More Men Died of Influenza.

The report shows that during the influenza epidemic several years ago more women than men were affected, but that the disease caused more deaths among men than among women.

In the matter of infant mortality Dr. Allen says federal census figures for 1929 show that 129 males died to every 100 females under one year of age, and that 12 male deaths occurred for every 100 females among children five years old.

On the other hand, figures show that from 104 to 106 males are born to every 100 females in the United States. Yet there are more women than men living in the nation now.

More than 2,000 claims have been filed. The Orphans' Court is not expected to take proof of relationship until next fall.

COLDS
Go Overnight

When You Take The Right Thing!

A cold doesn't have to run its course and expose you to serious complications. A cold can be routed overnight if you go about it the right way. First of all, a cold being an internal infection, calls for internal treatment. Secondly, a cold calls for a COLD remedy and not for a "cure-all."

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is what a cold requires. It is expensive, a cold remedy. It is a cold and disease and it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and gripe, feeling and tones and fortifies the entire system. Anything less than that is taking chances with a cold. Get Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine at any druggist, 30¢ and 50¢. Ask for it by the full name and beware of dealers who offer substitutes.

MANUSCRIPT OF A MASTER WRITER

THE LIFE OF OUR LORD
BY CHARLES DICKENS

Written for His Children in 1849 . . . and Kept as a Precious Family Secret for 85 Years

In 1849 Charles Dickens wrote, for the teaching of his own children, "The Life of Our Lord." Himself devout, it was his wish to tell the story of the New Testament in terms so simple as to be clear even to the youngest of his children.

It was Dickens' wish, too, that the manuscript be held within the family so long as any of its members lived. This wish was respected. For 85 years the manuscript has been kept a closely guarded secret; it has never been published or exhibited. Only recently have restrictions upon publication been removed by the death of Sir Henry Fielding Dickens, last surviving child of the author.

The unprecedented sum of $210,000, or $15.00 a word, was paid for the publication rights alone, the manuscript remaining with the family.

First publication of this work by one of the greatest figures in English prose writing will be a literary event that could happen only once in a lifetime. "The Life of Our Lord" will appear in 14 daily installments.

Mushroom Soup Is No Longer
For the Elite Only!

The mushroom is a delicacy which has long been considered the special privilege of the comparative few. The desire of the elite, always associated with the more elaborate dining tables, has for the most part been conquered by its absence from the vast majority of homes. Yet the mushroom is universal in its appeal—and eagerly relished by all classes of people whenever they are enabled to enjoy it.

And the mushroom has no more delicious appeal than when it gives its flavor and richness to a luxurious soup. It is in this form that it is now rendered available to everybody, and so economically that it is well within the reach of

It had remained for a well-known soup-maker to accomplish this service by means of a new mushroom soup which has just been announced to the public.

A good idea of what you may expect in enjoying this soup is obtained by the maker's statement of his purpose in making it and how it has been carried out. We quote his words:

"We have for some time been aware that the general public was eager for a mushroom soup truly luxurious in quality, but yet moderate in price. So we determined to make it."

"In doing so, we select only the choicest grade, fresh, cultivated mushrooms—delivered at our kitchens every day—exactly the kind of mushrooms that are served on the finest tables. With a rich puree of mushroom, we blend in just the double-thick cream—40 per cent butter fat—cream so thick it will hardly pour. The soup is garnished with a generous quantity of tender tidbits of mushroom."

"Our soup is condensed. It is made with such double-thick cream that when an equal quantity of water is added in the home kitchen, a soup is obtained of just the desired rich, creamy mushroom goodness."

as many Western shipments were consigned to St. Louis rather than to Chicago and Eastern points, where the weather was more severe.

Louisiana Strawberries In.

There are many greens on the markets—mustard greens from Texas and Alabama, kale from Arkansas, endive in plenty from California and Texas, and turnip tops from several states.

Prices on strawberries are lower, the first express shipment from Louisiana having been received this week.

Texas is sending in new red cabbage and also the savoy, or curly leaf, variety of cabbage.

California asparagus is coming in larger shipments with a consequent lowering of prices. It's not at all out of reach of modest budgets now for an occasional Sunday dinner treat.

Good buys this week are string beans, cauliflower and broccoli.

Rhubarb is quite plentiful and cheap. Suggestions and recipes for rhubarb are published in another column of this section today.

At the same time, pro-rated shipments of lettuce from California are ending, this having been an arrangement between growers out there, and the supply will no doubt be increased.

In spite of the recent storms and cold spell, there was no great increase in vegetable and fruit prices this week.

Vegetables were even a bit lower until both sides are brown.

for we have requests for apfel kuchen, nut torte and string-bean salad recipes, all of which follow.

German String Bean Salad.
Wash 1 1/2 pounds green string beans and cook in boiling salted water until tender. Drain and cool, then cut lengthwise in thin strips.

onions and marinade beans and onions in a French dressing made as very light, add bread crumbs (soft), then lemon rind and juice with oven (375 degrees F.) until firm or for about 40 minutes. Turn out on a platter and fill center with seafood in white sauce. Garnish with parsley.

Lamb Stew.
Have the meat cut into convenient pieces for serving, brown in bacon drippings, cover with stock or water, add a bunch of sweet herbs, a small clove of garlic, an onion and two tablespoons of vinegar. Simmer until the meat is done, skim and strain the liquid, add one-half cup of stewed and strained tomatoes, pour over meat and serve with a border of boiled rice.

To prepare the topping for the cake, mix cinnamon and one-half cupful sugar and sprinkle about half this mixture over the cake batter. Peel the apples and cut each into 16 sections. Lay the apple slices in close rows to cover the cake. Sprinkle the remainder of the cinnamon and sugar over the

POPULAR HOT CROSS
BUNS EASY TO MAKE

Old Recipe Given for Lenten Delicacy and Icing For Same.

In this recipe makes the buns rise very quickly. If a slower process is wanted, use one-half to one yeast cake. With half a yeast cake, the dough will take over night to rise; with one yeast cake it will rise over night and be ready early in the morning, or may be mixed in the morning to bake for dinner.

A cross may be cut in the top of each bun before they are put in the oven and after baking the cross thus made outlined with sugar icing.

For sugar icing, put one cup confectioners' sugar in a bowl, add one teaspoon melted butter and about two tablespoons milk, or enough to make an icing that will spread without running.

The recipe given above makes about two dozen small buns, or 18 larger ones.

MARSHMALLOW KISSES

One cup sugar.

One-quarter cup water.

Six marshmallows.

One egg white.

One-half cup chopped candied cherries.

One-half cup chopped nut meats.

Cook the sugar and water together to the thread stage, quarter the marshmallows and add to the syrup. Pour on stiffly whipped cream, heating in the time.

Fold in the cherries and nut meats, spread on crackers or unweetened wafers and place in a moderate oven to brown delicately.

Apple and Carrot Salad.

Apples and raw carrots make a good salad. Take equal parts of both. Slice thin. Let carrots stand an hour in cold water so they'll be crisp. Add a few raisins and serve on lettuce with cream mayonnaise.

Dough Doubles.

Break off small bits of the dough and shape into small round buns, place close together in a greased pan and bake for an hour until doubled in bulk. Bake in a hot oven for 15 to 20 minutes, depending on size. Brush with melted butter when done, and, after cooling slightly, ice the top of each bun with a cross made of sugar icing.

The large amount of yeast used for the children will make the buns rise quickly.

Fortunate for the children who do not get enough sunshine, cod-liver oil is rich in vitamin D, and therefore, with plenty of milk each day, it will prevent rickets. As a matter of fact, doctors have been prescribing it for this and other purposes for nearly a hundred years.

None of us know that it is the preventing rickets. And that cod-which is something the child must have if his bones and teeth are to grow and develop as they should.

Milk and vitamin D are two important ingredients in the children's milk to furnish the bone-making materials calcium and phosphorus, and vitamin D to enable the body to use those materials as it should. With out milk and vitamin D, children are likely to have rickets, a disease which may cripple them for life, and which at best leaves them with weakened or crooked bones.

NOODLES SUBSTITUTE
FOR MEAT IN LENT

Rings Permit Variety of Fillings of Vegetables or Fish.

A good recipe for a noodle ring is well worth having in Lent, for it is an excellent main dish for dinner on a meatless day.

It may be filled with creamed fish, mixed with creamed vegetables, oysters, shrimp, lobster or crab.

Then there are a number of other appetizing ways of preparing noodles, including canned lobster sauce over the noodles, garnishing with buttered crumbs, serving with cabbage, or with spinach and cheese.

Noodle Ring.

One and one-half cups dry noodles.

Two eggs.

One-half cup milk.

One-fourth teaspoon nutmeg.

Three-fourths teaspoon butter, melted.

Salt, paprika.

Cook noodles by dropping them slowly into boiling salted water and letting them boil for 20 minutes. Beat egg yolks, add milk, butter and seasoning. Combine the mixture with noodles. Beat whites of the eggs to stiff froth and fold them lightly into noodles. Butter a ring mold, or individual ring molds. Fill them with the noodle mixture and bake them set in a pan of hot water in a moderate oven until done. (Allow 45 minutes for large mold, 30 minutes for the small ones.) Invert the contents of the molds on hot plates and fill the centers with desired filling.

Lobster With Noodles.

One-half pound can lobster.

Three egg yolks.

Dash of salt and pepper.

Four tablespoons butter.

One-half package noodles.

One cup boiling water.

Juice of one-half lemon.

Cook noodles as though to serve plain. Beat butter to a cream. Add egg yolks, one at a time and beat well. Add lemon juice, salt and pepper. Five minutes before serving, add boiling water, a little at a time, stirring well. Place saucepan in bowl of boiling water and stir rapidly until sauce thickens like boiled custard. Add lobster meat cut fine and serve over hot noodles.

Cabbage With Noodles.

Shred cabbage and boil in salted water with an equal amount of egg noodles. Cook until nearly done and drain. Place three tablespoons of butter or other fat in a frying pan and allow to melt. Add the cabbage and noodles. Toss to mix in the fat, and allow to cook 10 minutes. Grated cheese may be served with this.

Noodles With Crumbs.

After cooking noodles, drain thoroughly. Just before serving, sprinkle generously with buttered crumbs, using two tablespoons butter to one cup crumbs, tossing the two together in a frying pan over a moderate heat until butter is absorbed by crumbs.

Spinach and Noodles.

Two cups cooked egg noodles. Two cups grated Swiss cheese. Two cups cooked spinach, chopped.

One cup milk.

Three tablespoons butter.

One tablespoon flour.

One-fourth teaspoon salt.

Paprika.

Place the cooked noodles in a buttered baking dish and cover them with half the grated cheese. Put the chopped spinach over the cheese. Make a sauce of the milk, butter, flour and seasonings, and pour it over the spinach. Sprinkle the remaining grated cheese on the sauce and bake the dish in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 30 minutes.

RECIPES FOR NEXT WEEK

French Fried Onions.
Onions, at least two inches in diameter.

Salt.
Pepper.

One egg yolk.
One-half cupful milk.
One-half cupful flour.

Peel and cut onions into one-eighth inch slices. Separate slices into rings and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Beat egg yolk, add milk and stir into the flour; beat smooth. Dip onions into this batter and fry in deep fat for 20 degrees F. until brown. Place in wire basket or paper to drain for a few minutes before serving. Serve as quickly as possible.

Pineapple Ice Box Cake.
One-half cup butter.
One cup sugar.
One egg yolk.
One tablespoon cream.
One can drained, crushed pine apple.

One-third cup pineapple juice.
Two egg whites.
Twenty-five graham crackers, crumbled.

Cream butter and sugar. Beat egg yolks with cream and stir over hot water until thick and smooth. Then add to butter and sugar mixture. Cool. Add crushed pineapple and juice and fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Line a shallow loaf pan with wax paper and put a layer of graham crackers in the bottom. Into this pour one-third of the pine-apple mixture. Cover with crumbs and more pineapple, continue until all is used. Cover pan with wax paper, fasten down with rubber band and place in refrigerator. Turn upside down on serving dish and serve with whipped cream or whipped evaporated milk.

Liver and Bacon Patties.
Combine one cup each of cooked minced liver and bacon.

One-quarter pound finely crumbled crackers.
One egg, slightly beaten.
One teaspoon minced onion.
One cup finely chopped parsley.
One tablespoon chili sauce.

One cup milk (use more milk if necessary).

Season with salt and pepper.

Apple in hot bacon drippings over medium flame. Brown on both sides.

Banana Tapioca Cream.
One-third cup quick-cooking tapioca.

One-half cup sugar.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
One egg yolk.
Four cups milk.

One egg white, stiffly beaten.
One teaspoon vanilla.
Two bananas.

Combine tapioca, sugar, salt, egg yolks and milk in top of double boiler and stir enough to break egg yolk. Place over rapidly boiling water, bring to scalding point (allow five to seven minutes), and cook five minutes, stirring frequently. Remove from boiling water. Fold a small amount into egg white, add to remaining tapioca mixture and blend. Add vanilla and chili-mixture thickens as it cools. Just before serving, crush one banana with silver fork and dice the other.

APPETIZING ACCESSORIES

Cut celery in three or four-inch lengths and cut both ends in fine strips, nearly to the center. Put in ice water and leave until the ends curl.

Cut a slice from the root end of each radish, leave about a half inch of the stems. Cut the skin in five petals and peel it back. Make several deep incisions at high angles to each other through the center of the radish. Place in ice water to spread open.

RED DEVIL'S FOOD CAKE RECIPE GOOD

Marshmallow Frosting Delicious for Loaf or Layers.

A request for a "red devil's food cake recipe and a suitable icing" is answered today with a buttermilk and soda recipe which we have found very satisfactory.

Marshmallow icing goes well with it, made as follows:

Red Devil's Food Cake.

One-half cup cocoa.
Two cups pastry flour.
Three-fourths cup fat—half butter.

One and one-half cups sugar.
Two eggs.
One-half cup buttermilk.
One teaspoon soda.
One teaspoon vanilla.

One-half cup boiling water.
Sift flour, then measure. Resift twice with cocoa. Cream fat until plastic. Add sugar gradually, creaming thoroughly. Add well-beaten eggs and beat hard one minute. Add flour—coconut extract, usually with buttermilk, in which soda has been dissolved, beginning with and ending with the flour mixture. Add vanilla and beat one-half minute. Add boiling water. Stir until batter is smooth. Pour into layer or loaf pans with sides oiled and bottoms lined with paraffin paper. Bake in moderate oven about 35 minutes. One loaf or two layers.

Marshmallow Frosting. One-half cup sweetened condensed milk.

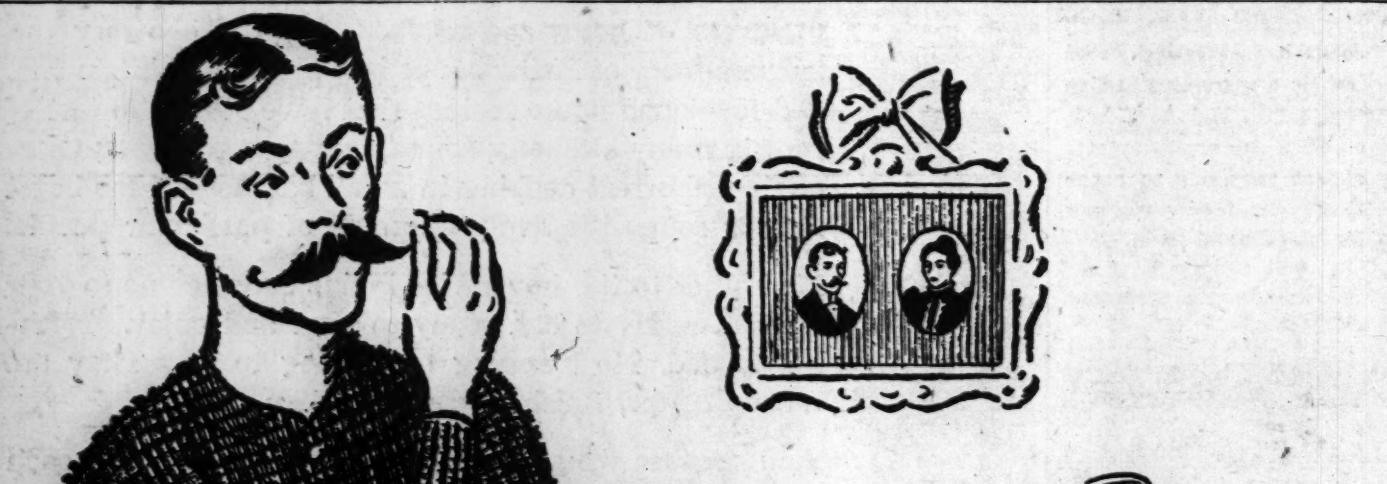

Four marshmallows.
Two tablespoons cocoa.
One teaspoon vanilla.

One, and one-half cups confectioner's sugar.

Cook milk, cocoa and quartered marshmallows in top of double boiler until marshmallows are melted. Remove from fire, add sugar and vanilla. Beat until smooth. This may be spread on cake while warm.

STUFFED FLANK STEAK

Pound a flank steak until flat, score well and stuff with dressing made of equal parts of bread crumbs and sausage meat, season with one onion, minced. Rub one-half teaspoon pepper and one and one-half teaspoons salt into the meat. Roll so that when served the steak will be cut across the fibres, into shape. Brown in bacon drippings, pour over one and one-half cups boiling water or stock and simmer or bake slowly for about two hours. Thicken gravy with flour paste.

GRANDFATHER wore red flannels and ate his weight each week . . .

HOW different today! We don't need heavy woolens in this age of steam-heated houses, closed cars, and warm offices. And we don't need "red flannel" meals.

The modern breakfast treat is a bowl of crisp Kellogg's Corn Flakes with milk or cream and a bit of fruit. Rich in energy . . . easy to digest . . . leaves you feeling keen and fit.

So convenient too. No cooking or trouble to serve. Always oven-fresh. A splendid lunch for business men. A fine bedtime snack. Order a red-and-green package today.

Let Kellogg's add refreshing crispness and healthful variety to the menu. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

NEW YORK, March 2.—Pressure lifted on the stock market today and leading issues rallied 1 to around 3 points. The upturn generally was attributed to technical conditions. Business and industrial news, however, continued optimistic. Trading was dull until the last half hour, when volume expanded. The close was strong. Transfers approximated 1,500,000 shares.

Wheat recovered nearly 2 cents a bushel as the Argentine Government indicated it would raise the price of this grain. Cotton sported around $1.50 a bale. General Electric furnished a survey by showing that imports from India to 40 to 45 cents. International dollar rates were narrow. Bonds, after early irregularity, rallied stocks.

General Electric jumped more than 2 points following the dividend announcement. Allied Chemical and Pullman were up 3 each while others up to 1 to 3, included American Telephone, Case, U. S. Steel, U. S. Smelting, American Commercial Alcohol, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Santa Fe, N. Y., Central, Union Pacific, American, Westinghouse, Chrysler, American Can, Consolidated Gas, Montgomery, West, South Dakota, Kelvinator, Republic Steel, Loew's and American Rolling Mill.

Cotton reflected the favorable

of the Bankhead crop restriction

bill. Most stocks were at higher levels throughout the session, but the only enthusiasm exhibited was just before the close.

Wheat ended with gains of 1/4 to 1/2 cents a bushel. Corn advanced 1 to 1 1/2 cents and oats were 1/4 to 1/2 higher. Barley firmed 1/2 to 1 cent.

Woolen goods recovered 1/2 cent.

Central metal, Cotton closed with advances of $1.20 to $1.45 a bale.

Bar silver was unchanged at 48¢ cents an ounce.

The British pound, at mid-afternoon, was off 1/4 cent at $5.074.

French francs were up slightly at 6.63 cents, and Dutch guilders showed a gain of .03 of a cent at

News of the Day.

The move for Federal control of Stock Exchanges seemingly had lost some of its influence on equities.

Freight car loadings for the week ended Feb. 24, while 25,525 less than the total of the previous week, were really a little more than seasonal, according to carrier analysts. The aggregate for the week, which included a holiday, was 73,371, which was 11,066 over the 1933 week and 37,83 over the corresponding period in 1932.

"Anomalous," while recording business advances during the past week, pointed out that there were "certain elements of artificiality" in the figures "which need to be taken into account before jumping to the conclusion that business activity is in the early stages of a sustained rise."

The growth of unused credit was shown by the weekly report of the Federal Reserve System, which disclosed that the total of excess reserves for reporting member banks had attained a new high mark this week by reaching $1,100,000,000. The reserve balances of the system rose $263,000,000, one of the largest weekly expansions of bank reserves ever recorded.

Much interest was expressed in the probable terms of the Treasury's March 15, financing. Certificates amounting to more than $400,000,000 must be retired at that time.

In addition, it was thought that one billion dollars of "new money" would be sought. The general impression was that rates to 5 percent, year minimum, would be offered.

CARNERA FIGHTS HIS BEST BATTLE IN BEATING LOUGHRAIN

PRIMO SHOWS BETTER LEFT THAN HIS RIVAL IN RETAINING TITLE

By John E. Wray.

Sports Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
MIAMI, Fla., March 2.—Tommy Loughran, the David of the prize ring, didn't bring down "Goliath" Primo Carnera, but he gave some 15,000 persons who viewed the 15-round battle in the Madison Square Garden arena here the thrill of their lives last night.

Conceding 86 pounds' weight to a world champion, Loughran, by dint of good technique, bitter fight-work, considerable boxing skill and the finest display of endurance, and courage given in many years by a veteran boxer, managed to last the limit before the unceasing charges of his 270-pound opponent.

Although he lost the decision by a wide margin, his display of the "manly art of self-defense," considered among the forgotten arts, went a long way to making the onlookers realize that there is something to boxing besides brute force and a killing punch.

Carnera, the champion, fought the very best fight this writer has seen since this cumbersome title-holder engaged in it. It is not exaggerated to say that he was the public's better, left hand than Loughran himself exhibited. He used his right cleverly to knock down Loughran's blows and he showed that instead of a mere mechanical pike, he is now able to either hook or jab with his left. He had Loughran baffled with it for the greater part of the fight.

Primo Won 11 Rounds.

Irrespective of the weight of their blows, Primo fairly outpointed Loughran, who was able to score only three rounds, according to this writer's tab, as against 11 for Primo, with one draw even.

Although there was never a knockdown in the fight and no signs of a cut or blood on either man, the fight was really a desperate one for Loughran. There was not one moment in the fight when there seemed to be the remotest chance for him to win. Rather, it was a question how long he would be able to evade the tremendous rushes, the crushing blows delivered close in and the massive clouts to the head and body which Primo slugged in every opportunity.

Fading rapidly in the last five rounds, Loughran's splendid generalship won him the admiration of all onlookers. For the last three

8624 Fans Paid $44,500 to See Heavy Title Bout

By the Associated Press
MIAMI, Fla., March 2.—RECORDS today showed a paid attendance of only 8624 and gross receipts of $44,598.70—a low water mark for heavyweight title fights for this century—for the 15-round Carnera-Loughran world heavyweight title bout here last night. Net receipts were listed at $39,361.60.

rounds it appeared that he might pass out at any moment. The huge, gorilla-like Carnera, brown with Florida sun, bared madly in for the kill. Time after time he buffeted Loughran about, landing seemingly solid rights and lefts, but, like a cork drawn under momentarily, Loughran always came back for more.

Carnera, the champion, fought the very best fight this writer has seen since this cumbersome title-holder engaged in it. It is not exaggerated to say that he was the public's better, left hand than Loughran himself exhibited. He used his right cleverly to knock down Loughran's blows and he showed that instead of a mere mechanical pike, he is now able to either hook or jab with his left. He had Loughran baffled with it for the greater part of the fight.

Carnera Starts Fast.

Carnera began as though he wanted to catch a train. He started to pursue Loughran and make quick work of it. He poked his right around the chin with his long left and then laid in a left.

Loughran backed away, occasionally trying his left for the head and once or twice his right. The discrepancy in their height and size, and Primo's trick of leaning back out of reach made Loughran's efforts seem puny at the start. For two rounds Carnera pounced on Tommy as though he was the crowd, for instance. I don't blame the fans for sympathizing with Loughran. He looked so small in there with me and, besides, he's an American. Nevertheless, a partisan crowd sometimes can be harder to defeat than an opponent.

The next factor I had to beat was the referee, Leo Shea. I'm not questioning his motives. But he was swayed in his actions in favor of Loughran, even going so far as to keep telling me, "Step back, step back" from the clinches when both my hands were free. That isn't right.

Then Loughran shifted the attack to the body. A couple of solid thumps in the ribs made the "Big Train" grunt and look at his small opponent in pain-spared surprise. Also, he slowed down.

Loughran Confuses Title Holder With Shift in Attack From Head to Body

Referee Shea and Judges Disagreed on Loughran's Rounds

By the Associated Press
MIAMI, Fla., March 2.—THE three officials who decided in Primo's favor over Tommy Loughran last night each gave the champion a wide margin on points. The referee, Leo Shea, and one judge, Colin McLachlan, gave Primo 10 rounds while the other judge, Roy Lathan, scored 12 out of 15 for the titleholder.

Shea and McLachlan each gave Loughran only one round, with four even, the former giving Tommy the second and the latter conceding him the fourth. Lathan scored the fifth, sixth and tenth for Loughran. Thus not one of the trio agreed on any one of the rounds tallied for the challenger. All united, however, with the ringiders in giving Carnera a wide margin in the last five rounds.

I had him outweighed by 86 sitting up instead of lying down for a day or two.

Champion Has Improved.

The fight proved that Carnera is becoming more proficient with each appearance. He is really no longer a mechanical fighter, but uses his head. Also he shows improvement in all departments.

It seemed evident to ringiders that Carnera had real power behind his punches. Loughran would not have lasted more than four or five rounds. However, it must be remembered that very few of Carnera's blows landed on wholly unprotected territory, the foxy Loughran putting up a masterful defense.

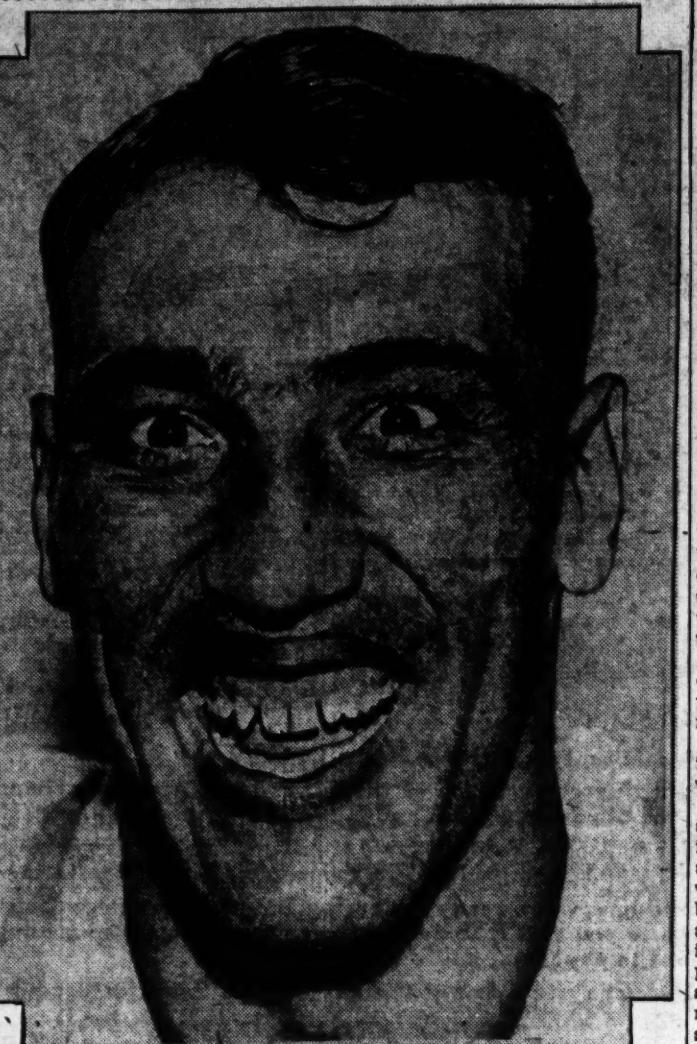

As a matter of fact, Primo went out of his way to avoid giving offense. Once or twice, when he might legally have smashed his foe, he refrained, looking around at the referee—and for once the crowd gave grudging approval.

Toward the tenth round the crowd began to fear that Loughran would be unable to last it out and "Sick it out, Tommy," was shouted on all sides.

But each round saw the Man Mountain still charging like a rhinoceros while Loughran, with his front to the foe, was slowing down perceptibly. In the fourteenth round, Tommy was staggering. In the fifteenth round he was so near out that one ringholder besought him loudly to "Stand up, Tommy, it won't be long now."

Tommy stood up—how, probably not even he can tell. But the mauling he took from his belt to the crown of his head, will probably force him to take his rest.

Champion's Smile of Victory

PRIMO CARNERA.

Carnera, Disappointed at Own Showing, Praises His Opponent for Game Fight

By Primo Carnera, (World's Heavyweight Champion.)

MIAMI, Fla., March 2.—"My admiration goes out to Tommy Loughran, a game little man whom I outclassed in every physical department. In all justice, however, I must state that I had more to beat than Loughran in order to retain my championship. There was the crowd, for instance. I don't blame the fans for sympathizing with Loughran. He looked so small in there with me and, besides, he's an American. Nevertheless, a partisan crowd sometimes can be harder to defeat than an opponent."

The next factor I had to beat was the referee, Leo Shea. I'm not questioning his motives. But he was swayed in his actions in favor of Loughran, even going so far as to keep telling me, "Step back, step back" from the clinches when both my hands were free. That isn't right.

Carnera Returns to His Left. Time after time advancing, he pushed Loughran's head back to his shoulder blade with a poke of that wagon tongue left and rushed in to finish. But the wary old fox refused to be annihilated.

The appalling difference in size and weight was unmistakable and that once, in sixth or seventh round, when Tommy was seemingly helpless and Primo was belting him with both hands, a woman in the front row screamed and cried to "Stop him, stop him."

But the wary old veteran was far from dead. He held his own fairly well up to the tenth, although the going was very rough. Naturally Tommy had to hold some to save himself. The giant Carnera under such conditions, trying to break loose to finish his foe, shook Tommy and swung him around to break his grip—even the referee couldn't object to that. Loughran was the offender.

Crown Starts to Yell "Foul."

The crowd in sympathy with the underdog, yelled "Foul." It also howled indignantly when Primo seemed to grab Tommy by the neck with his left and pull him in to meet him with his right. The fact of the matter is, however, that Tommy was holding Primo's left hand and this entitled the big man to hit with his free hand. The referee declined very properly to interfere.

As a matter of fact, Primo went out of his way to avoid giving offense. Once or twice, when he might legally have smashed his foe, he refrained, looking around at the referee—and for once the crowd gave grudging approval.

Toward the tenth round the crowd began to fear that Loughran would be unable to last it out and "Sick it out, Tommy," was shouted on all sides.

Carnera's share of the receipts was not more than $15,000, the most pitiful sum paid a heavyweight world champion in years. In 1927, Gene Tunney was paid more than $300,000 and Jack Dempsey, the loser, received $450,000.

Fifteen years ago Jess Willard was paid $100,000 and as long ago as 1908, Tommy Burns received

UNITED STATES TENNIS "PROS" DEFEAT FRENCH

By the Associated Press.

MONTRÉAL, March 2.—France's professional tennis aces, Henri Cochet and Martin Piau, had a chance today, but only a slim one, to take a series from their American rivals, William T. Tilden and Ellsworth Vines. After dropping 12 straight encounters to the lanky pair from opposite sides of the United States, Cochet and Piau broke the spell in the early hours this morning by taking a straight set double decision 6-4, 6-2.

Before that Tilden had defeated Piau, 7-6, 6-2, 6-8, 6-4, and Vines had conquered Cochet, 6-4, 6-2, 9-7, 3-6, 6-3, to continue the string of triumphs that were unbroken in New York and Boston.

Lewis, none other, all 260 pounds of him, was the center of the storm, or, to be more accurate, he was the storm. His right hand was lightning and, brothers and sisters, it struck twice in the same place this morning by taking a straight set double decision 6-4, 6-2.

Ability to cope through in the pitch is what makes a hero and if ever there was a lad who earned the plaudits of basketball-minded fans, that boy is George Tuthill, whose courageous work in the semi-final round enabled Ferguson to survive and to meet Country Day for the "B" championship of the eighth annual St. Louis district high school basketball tournament tonight at the Washington University field house. At the hour later, Beaman will oppose McBride for final honors in the "A" division.

In an evening replete with sensational plays as the closeness of all semifinal games testifies, for the victorious teams in all four instances won by two points, Tuthill stepped up to the foul line and dropped in the nearest kind of free throw to send the game into extra period.

IRISH CHAMPION OFFERS FOREIGN THREAT IN DERBY

LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 3.—Reports from the East indicate there will be an international angle to the $30,000 added Kentucky Derby to be run May 5 at Churchill Downs. Capitalism Not Dead Yet.

Mr. Touhy Sobbed.

No Kowtow, Says Kang Teh.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.
(Copyright, 1934.)

GEORGE H. MAINES announces Senator Huey P. Long and Norman Thomas Debate at Mecca Temple, in New York City. Subject: Capitalism Is Doomed and Cannot Now Be Saved by Redistribution of Wealth. Thomas taking affirmative, Long negative, defending capitalism.

Norman Thomas may convince his audience, but history will take Senator Long's side. Military feudal-ism having ruled Europe for many centuries gave way to what is called "industrial and capitalistic feudalism." Such systems of government do not rise and fall quickly.
Long after today's little NRA, CWA, RFC and other alphabetical complications and remedies are forgotten government of the world by modern feudalism of capitalistic and industrial intelligence will continue. This century will not see the end of it.

The world is always ruled by intelligence and power. Rulership resided on the strongest, most intelligent nations and then passed to organized government by kings and armies.

Just now, power is in accumulated dollars and in industrial science and organization. It may pass eventually to what is vaguely called "the general intelligence and the rights of man," but that is a long way off.

In Illinois, Mr. Roger Touhy, called "Terrible Touhy," ruler of the underworld, expert kidnaper, goes to prison under 99-year sentence, with 15 automobile loads of police men accompanying him to the prison gates.

The super-gangster, head bowed, shoulders sagging, tears in his eyes, sobs in his throat, says: "This is terrible."

It is terrible, of course, 99 years in prison, even though you may come out, as Touhy may, at the end of some 30 years, is a long time.

But kidnapping, fastening men's eyes and mouth with adhesive tape, tying their wrists and ankles with wire, torturing their relatives with screams, is also "terrible." It would hardly do to have all the "terribleness" on one side of the fence.

In California the people got tired of kidnapping, and, especially, of torture, so two men that kidnapped and used burning paper to extort money, will be hanged by the neck until they are dead. They, doubtless, think it is terrible, and it is.

The new Emperor of Manchukuo, King Teh, ascends the throne declaring that everything is happening in accordance with "the will of heaven," thinking "our neighbor, Japan," for Japanese help in "us-pressing bandits and other threatening elements." King Teh found that Japan also worked in accordance with the will of heaven.

He put his hand solemnly upon the altar of the Great Manchu god Shang Ti and bade farewell to that god humbly as he left his presence.

You would not want a more impressive ceremony, the young Emperor wearing a long robe of jet black fox fur, golden yellow sash, with the imperial vest, an orchid and a high black head dress. Crowns are not worn by Mongolian rulers.

This is Kang Teh's third inauguration as Emperor. Twice in China, thrown out twice, now in Manchuria.

During the coronation, the Emperor called upon his subjects—there are 30,000,000 of them, no small crowd—to study modern methods and forget some ancient methods, did away with an old rule, and omitted the "kowtow" that would have compelled all entering the sacred Imperial presence to kneel and press the foreheads on the ground. The Oriental custom, based on the belief that the divine Emperor is everything and even the greatest of his subjects nothing, is well described in a few words by Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth in her book, "Crowded Hours."

Mrs. Longworth was taken to the Forbidden City and the Imperial Gardens to see the Chinese Dowager Empress, a haughty, severe old lady, because she, then Miss Roosevelt, was the daughter of Theodore Roosevelt, ruler of a great nation. She was carried through the Imperial Gardens, as was the Empress, sitting in a golden chair, borne on men's shoulders.
As the two ladies talked, the well-known Chinese diplomat, Wu Tingfang, translated.

In the United States, that intelligent Chinese of high rank had been an important person telling us what we thought we ought to do, criticizing frankly. In the garden of the old Empress he was no more than an ant in the dust.

Youth of Today to See in Picture Just What New York
Was Like in Gay Nineties

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, March 1.

THE dynamic William Travers Jerome, who was front-page copy when he prosecuted Harry Thaw in the celebrated Stanford White murder, will live again on the screen. Ray Long is preparing a scenario to be called "Old New York," which deals with New York during the giddy age, when the late Jerome was State's Attorney. Robert Kane, who will produce "Old New York," will incorporate Delmonico's, Sherry's and Murray's, where the gilded youth had to wear evening clothes to gain admittance. The American corner, the Fifth Avenue Hotel and, of course, the White-Thaw murder case will figure in this Fox drama which Raoul Walsh will direct. It's Raoul's last on his Fox contract.

The women of the country can give Jane Murfin a great big hand. Jane, who has been working as a writer at radio for several years, was today appointed supervisor by her boss, Pandro Berman. Jane, so far as I know, is the first woman to officially bear that title. Pan says Jane won this recognition because of her work on "Katherine Hepburn and Irene Dunne stories. Jane's first assignment is Frances Lederer's next picture, an original.

Thomas Meighan, who sailed yesterday to London with Norma Talmadge to make a picture for British International, is on his way to Florida with Mrs. Meighan and the Genie Sarazene. First, Norma walked out on the story, and then it proved too much for Tommy who didn't want to make a floppo. Nary a camera cranked was turned although there was much conversation in London over the big plans B. I. had for the American screen stars.

The Ricardo Cortezes, back from the honeymoon, have settled down with quiet domesticity. Rio was on the Warner lot today, talking over his role in "Dark Tower" opposite Edward G. Robinson and Mary Astor.

George Raft's big bold bodyguard, Mack Gray, known to Hollywood as "the killer," has a girl. Up to now "the killer" has scorned all petticoats, preferring to be known as a cynical woman hater. He has now succumbed completely to Jean Lacy, pint-up extra-girl. If you could see her you wouldn't blame him.

I'll tell the listening world (apologies to Elsie Robinson) that Damon Runyon is doing all right with the Hollywood producers. A short story of his, "Princess O'Hara," appeared last week in Collier's. The ink was scarcely dry before Universal had it under film control. Three weeks ago the Runyon pub. read "The Lemon Drop Kid" in the same magazine and today it belongs to Paramount.

Strange that an actor of Sidney Blackman's promise should have to prove his mettle, yet that is just what he did. He is in "Transient Love." He has been worrying along for months, playing small parts. Finally, in order to get one of the leading roles in "Transient Love," he took a big salary cut just to prove all he needed was a chance. He has been given the lead in "Down Their Last Yacht."

Well, it's all over between Lola Lane, screen actress, and Al Hall, W. K. director. After a bitter quarrel last night, Lola said "good-bye forever," packed her suit case and departed for New York. The chances of a reconciliation are exceedingly remote, but that may be the discard. Meanwhile, Al, who is one of the popular boys around town, is in circulation once again.

Long back in 1921, when Percy Marmont was about the biggest thing in the way of a screen hero, he made a silent version of "The Witching Hour" for Paramount. Now Paramount is bringing it out of its wrappings and preparing to make it into a talkie, with Sir Guy Standing, Elizabeth Young and Ray Milland in the leading roles.

The Cary Grants had a sad aftermath to their homecoming. Their Sealyham Archibald, in the excitement of expressmen and well-coming friends, became disgusted with it all and ran away. Doris Kenyon returned home today from a highly successful concert tour to a new lawyer waiting at the train. Her divorce case, which her knowledge had been set for this morning, so she went directly from the train to the courtroom. The Fred Nibols said "au revoir" to their friends at a tea. Fred and Elinor and the children are moving to Clear Lake on a ranch. Fred has said good-bye to directing and will spend his time raising sheep. Charles Lederer is working hard on the "Ish" stories for Irving Thalberg and doing all right, too.

You've heard these sayings many times, of course, but do you know who said them first?

- 2—"You can't fool all of the people all of the time."
- 3—"A rolling stone gathers no moss."

Career of "THE RAGTIME PADEREWSKI"

No Wedding

NTHE days when Hawaiian music took the country by storm and countless ukuleles in the hands of adolescents began to strum its popularity into the past, one could go scarcely anywhere about St. Louis without hearing someone singing, whistling, playing on the phonograph or rendering in some form, "Oh, how she could wicki wacki woo." For whatever the merits of "Aloha" and the other sentimental hits, "Wicki Wacki Woo" took precedence, for it was the composition of St. Louis' own wonder boy musician, his maestro of jazz, the late Gene Rodemich.

That was only one of several heart-throbbing melodies turned out by Gene, but it was Gene who gave merit to the song, rather than the songs that made Gene. For a period of 15 years he was the city's favorite orchestral entertainer, and even after he went East for more extensive honors seven years before his death last Tuesday, he retained a large share of interest, and many a radio listener tuned in on his orchestra.

The "Ragtime Paderewski" was the affectionate nickname bestowed upon him by his fellow St. Louisans, partly because he was among the very first, as a mere youth, to take up the new ragtime syncopation, but mostly because he was a young, carefree musician a pianist who could play classical compositions in competition with the best of them, but who had an inherent ability with ragtime.

It was a very meager orchestra at first; in fact, for the beginning it consisted of himself and a drummer. But almost at once he rose to wide popularity among the social lights of the city, and could scarcely keep up with the demand for his appearance.

"Wherever St. Louis society assembles, in its clubs or homes, to indulge in the popular postures of the waltz, the graceful masque of the tango or the bounding gymnastics of the turkey trot, the dance is not

is a newspaper clipping of that day informs us. "A tango tea, a club hop, or a wedding dance without Gene would be as stale, flat, and unprofitable as Hamlet with Lamlet left out," it continues.

His ability attracted to him J. D. Wooster Lambert, who not only was prominent in social circles, but was so good a pianist that he immediately sponsored him in no small way. Among other things, he had programs printed and mailed to all his friends, calling attention to Gene's talents. Miss Ann Drew, then one of the best dancers in the city, also aided Gene.

All attempts to do anything with his training in classic music ended nowhere, and it was even so far forgotten that a rumor spread he was self-taught. At a fashionable South Side wedding the hostess hesitated about engaging him because she wanted the ragtime dance music in-tempered with classical numbers.

Gene filled in innumerable engage-

People Bother Unduly About Impressions

What Others Think Is Less Important Than Trying to Do the Best.

By The Rev. Joseph Fort Newton

"I F YOU could just set on the fence and see yourself go by, you shore would laugh yourself to death," said a dear old colored man who saw all the funny things in life, chuckling as he went.

No doubt we are as funny to others as they are to us. Robert Burns had the same idea when he wished that some power would give us the gift to see ourselves as others see us. It would free us from many a blunder and foolish notion, he said, and put us in our place.

Perhaps, but it might easily break our hearts, and make our inferiority complex bigger than it is. Others do not accept our estimate of ourselves. If our friends inflate our value, our enemies deflate us.

"Let no man think more highly of himself than he ought to think," said St. Paul. But why do we think of ourselves too highly? It is because, by some hurt or humiliation, we have been made to think less highly of ourselves than we ought to think. We must strike a balance.

Each of us has a life-illusion, so to name it, which cannot be broken without injury. For that reason we must deal gently with a child, seeking not to break its will, but to direct it. We need humor, yet but sarcasm and satire never! That cut and hurt and leave scars.

After all, others see only the surface of our lives. They do not know what goes on inside of us. As a little girl once said to me, "Daddy, you are not inside of me." It was true and it made me think, too, because we may so easily misjudge, misinterpret, and hurt rather than help.

If we seem absurd to others it may be because we do not express our real selves. Fear, shyness, awkwardness, all sorts of things make us misrepresent ourselves and we make a bad showing of what we are.

Anyway, we set too much store by what others think and say about us. It does not matter as much as we imagine. They may have a distorted notion of us, far from the truth. We must live our own life.

Besides, if we are worried about what the other fellow thinks of us, we may be sure he is wondering what we think of him. Let us do our best, do our best, and think the best of others—the rest does not count.

A Man's First Consideration Is His Wife and She Need Not Hesitate to Discuss It

By MARTHA CARR

Dear Mrs. Carr: We have been married several years. My husband had several insurance policies naming his mother as beneficiary at the time, and he also had a number of properties which she would receive at his death. He had one policy charged for my benefit; but this is now worthless. I have never spoken to him regarding the matter. Mrs. Carr, but don't you think he should have these changed?

If I had the health I had before I was married, I would not say anything to anyone about this, but if anything should happen to my husband, I would be unable to make my living, due to an operation. My husband's mother is 80 years old, with another son and has, besides a daughter, two unmarried daughters, and I am sure she would be well cared for. I love my husband and have hesitated to speak of this, for fear he would think my interest mercenary. If I were able now I would get a job, as I really think he would be happier living with his mother; as it is, though, don't you think it is his duty to provide for me?

MRS. S. L. E.

Without question, your husband should think first of providing for you, even without the testimony you have just given; and especially if there is no justification for you, if his mother is taken care of. I know that women with really nice feeling think that it should not be necessary to speak of these things. But that is being a little over-sensitive, and it may be that if you remind your husband with the conditions and facts as they are, he will see the situation as it is. You should not hesitate to talk to him freely about it.

Dear Mrs. Carr: NOTICE in your reply to "Lonely Widow" that you don't seem best left off the photograph. Why not write just your name, "Peggy," near the lower right-hand corner or on the back?

Dear Mrs. Carr: I would like you to tell me where I is the nearest military school and how much does it cost? Do you have to pay for your uniform? I would like to leave as soon as possible.

EL-TOVAR.

The nearest military school is the Western Military Academy, Alton, Ill. Write there for catalogue and information.

It isn't possible for me to help if persons, reading my answers, read less than the whole answer. Invariably in the cases you speak of, I have suggested ways to meet people, always through some use for or interesting activity. The want with most persons is, they want acquaintances to drop from the sky, without effort or responsibility on their sides. There isn't any class distinction about the matter; my suggestions hold good in every strata. I do not quite know what you mean by classing them as "ordinary."

Dear Mrs. Carr: HAVE a little girl 3 years old. I want her to learn how to dance. Do you think she is too young? She is a small child weighing only 25 pounds, but in perfect health. She has the slippers for toe dancing, but what I want to know, are there any free schools for this kind where I could take her. If she advances well, I'll be willing to pay for her lessons, but want to know if she has it in her.

A YOUNG MOTHER.

I think you would make a mistake to allow a child so young, and especially one so slight in stature, to begin toe dancing.

It just happens that I know a very good friend of the late Mme. Anna Pavlova, who teaches a great many children dancing. She says Mme. Pavlova did not approve of children under 8 going up on their toes, and this teacher refuses to teach the young children this type of dancing, although she makes charming little dancers of them and later trains them for the profession.

Dear Mrs. Carr: KNOW you have so many requests for clothing, and my little girl has recently outgrown these little dresses I am sending you, so I thought perhaps you could place them where someone would benefit by them. If you have no time, just give them to anyone near you. I recently gave a box to a poor family and overlooked these. Wishing you much success in your work.

A FRIEND.

COULD you tell me whether the ostrich fan is still used with the evening gown?—ANXIOUS.

Early last fall an attempt was made to revive ostrich, coque and other feathers with the fashionable costume; but I think they have been used very little, really, this year, by the best dressed women.

The same held true about fans.

Dear Mrs. Carr: I have a great many calls for clothing, and while I have not as much time and space as I would like, to help about these things, I appreciate very much any offers of this kind which I may pass on to those whom I know deserve them.

Usually, I give the address of someone in need or the address of those who are giving, so that they may be delivered or called for at the home. These little dresses, however, have already been given, where they will be useful, and I hope you will accept my thanks for them.

Dear Mrs. Carr: NEW ideas in the department of earned money will prove beneficial to you who entered the world on this date in the coming 12 months; recognize and develop them. Don't be afraid to change when it's worth while. Make hay after Nov. 2—go after the rewards you have earned to date and be earning more. Danger: Juns 14 to July 25, and Oct. 23 to Jan. 2. Tomorrow.

I could not prescribe a list of foods for giving strength, because those which you cannot digest well are not nourishing in your particular case. Even spinach.

Dear Martha Carr: YOUR advice has given me some wonderful help, so I am hoping you will be of assistance to me again. I would like a list of the foods which give strength. I know spinach is strength-giving, but I am sure there are others.

GIRL FAMILY
—By—
BEATRICE BURTON

CHAPTER ELEVEN.

MARY was dressing now for an engagement to go to the movies with one of her young men friends, and Susan was sitting at the foot of the bed watching her in the mirror of the dressing table. It was 6 o'clock and through the half open door of the bedroom the fragrance of marrowfat beans, baked with molasses and onion and white bacon in the kitchen, came to mingle with the fragrance of Mary's French perfume and face powder.

"Tell me about this new man at your house, Susan," she said, leaning close to the glass to put some eye shadow in just the right place at the corner of her eye. Mary's method of making up was to put on rouge and lipstick and powder and eye shadow with generous hand, and then to wipe practically all of it off with a clean piece of old linen. The result was that she never looked artificial but only delicately tinted and interesting. Girls knew that she made up her face but they could never persuade their men friends that she did.

"I must gripe the Brodericks to have to take in a roomer," Mary added. "Who is he? Some broken-down aristocrat friend of theirs?" Aunt Nell and Uncle Arthur were too proud to discuss the older Brodericks, who had never taken any notice whatsoever of them. But Mary had no inhibitions about them—or about anything else. What she wanted to talk about she did talk about with the most perfect frankness and freedom.

"No, he's a young man. A stranger," Susan answered her. "Uncle Worthy put him in the paper and he mentioned it."

She paused for just the fraction of a second. "He's the best looking man I've ever seen," she finished.

Mary swung around on the seat before the dressing table and looked at her, her eyes round with pretended amazement.

"Surely, Susan, you're not saying a thing like that about another man when you're just engaged to Wallace! When you've just picked him out from the whole world of good-looking men!—Darling, I'm afraid he wouldn't enjoy hearing you say that."

Susan shrugged her shoulders. "I've been in love and still realize that there are so good many handsome men around, besides Wallace. Being engaged doesn't make you blind, Mary."

Mary turned back to her work. "I've heeded different," she said.

She picked up a lipped and bore down heavily on her mouth. "Some girls has all the luck," she went on. "Think of you getting yourself engaged, and then meeting the best looking man you've ever seen all in one day. It just isn't fair, Susie. As soon as you realize how this new man you must bring him over here so I can work on him."

SUSAN said, "All right, if I can manage it," in a dry little tone. "He probably doesn't expect to become very friendly with us, just being there at night," she said easily. "He takes his meals out, of course, and he's studying law at night. I don't imagine we'll see much of him."

Mary was powdering her white neck with an enormous green swansdown puff. Her bright hair came down upon the nap in a V of copper.

"You bring him 'round, Susie," she said, and then she began to sing in a high nasal voice:

Young men lodgers,
Young men lodgers, three.
One for you,
And one for Sue,
And the other one for ME!"

Suddenly she stopped and all the humor went out of her pretty clever face. "Listen to me, Susie Broderick! If you're engaged to one man, who do you think about another man when you've just met the best looking one you ever saw?" she said slowly. "You'd just better watch your step. That's all."

Just by coming to live in the house Mr. Sholes had changed it completely for Susan. It became for her, from the first week of his stay in it, a place of adventure and interest.

She had always tried to be downstairs at eight in the morning to help Anna empty the ash trays, pick up the newspapers of the day before putting the lower floor into a semblance of order before the family came down to breakfast.

During the first days of Mr. Sholes' occupancy of Grandfather Broderick's room, Susan lingered about the doorway of the parlor in the morning so that she could speak to him when he came downstairs a little before eight. She told herself that it seemed dreadful not to be friendly to him when he was so nice about using the side door. He made no unnecessary trouble about the house. He left it early and returned late. No man came for him, and he carried out his own laundry in a bundle. To Susan, who said him take it, there was something oddly pathetic about that bundle tied up in newspaper. She was accustomed to men who found clean collars and shirts in their bureau drawers every day and never asked whose hands had washed and ironed and put them there.

She soon learned that the nights he went to law school were Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. Sometimes on the other nights he would come home early to change his clothes before going out again to see him, or the stars or in the hall, and say, "Good evening, Mr. Sholes," hoping that he would stop for a minute to talk to her. But he never did.

He went his own way, kept to

TODAY'S PATTERN

For Small Girls

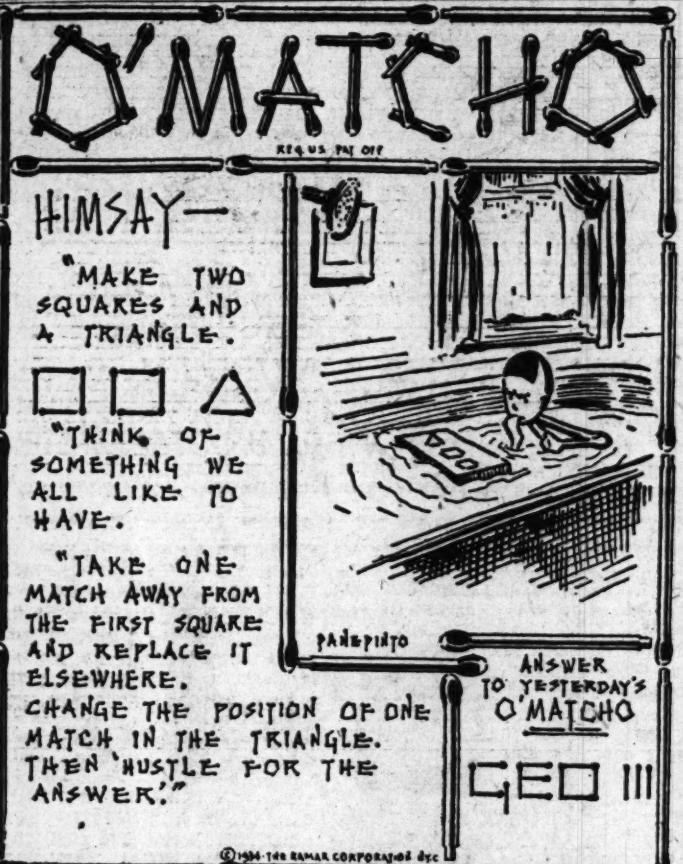

EVERY little girl will adore this frock, it has so much young charm. And it has style, too, just as much as a grown person's dress. For a little party frock it is most attractive made of swiss, dimity, voile or batiste and trimmed around the flutter ruffle edge with lace. The same pattern can be used to make a gingham dress or one of a cotton print suitable for play and school. But then you should leave the lace off and edge it with self material, either in a ruffle, a facings or a binding. The skirt pleats lend delightful animation and give ample room for strenuous play.

Pattern 1501 is available in sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14. Size 8 takes 2 1/4 yards 36 inch fabric and 3 1/4 yards edging. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

By Mrs. Brooke P. Church

MRS. JONES was a writer. She was also a mother. She had, furthermore, a very keen sense of justice.

Since she could not earn the wages of enough maids to take care of the house and babies, and since the family purse for the first years of her marriage was slim, she gave up her work and took over the care of house and children for the first 10 years of her married life.

By that time some of the children were at school, and finances were sufficiently satisfactory for her to begin to find time to write once more.

But by now the family had grown accustomed to calling on her for everything. She would sit down at her desk with a brain teeming with ideas and reams of clear white paper to put them on, only to be interrupted every five minutes with some trifling call which broke the train of thoughts.

At last she would shut her desk in despair, her brain empty and exhausted.

Finally she called a council of the children and gave her ultimatum.

"I shall probably have many years of life after you are grown. If you want me to be a liability when I am old, with nothing to do but interfere in your lives and make you wretched, go right ahead as you are. Interrupt me and make it impossible to go on with my work.

"If you will give me a little time of my very own every day to think and write, I can assure you that I will not be a burden to you in my old age."

The children agreed that the demand was reasonable, and Mrs. Jones has found them zealous guardians and champions of her right to uninterrupted time.

TOMORROW is the day you clutch a well-filled pocketbook in your hand and go forth to satisfy your buying urge. It is the big day so far as St. Louis retailers are concerned. A Recovery Celebration has been planned and every store is trying to outdo all the others in its value-giving festival.

Whether you are seeking new spring clothes for yourself, your family or your house, there will be plenty of choice from which to choose.

Picking a suit from the maze of short jacket, long jacket, three-quarter length jacket and all the other types will be enough to give you a headache unless you know your type. For this is the spring when almost any suit is the right suit, so long as it is becoming.

Short-jacketed tweed models with boyish tailored lines are new and special, especially when they appear in beige that is flecked with green, brown or red. You'll be seeing them in quantity.

Most Dresses

By Dixie Tighe

NEW YORK, March 1.
EVERYONE is going rather like the women but it's not so Beth and Jo as you may think. The little women of yesterday are merely an idea to the fashionists—the final word is not without its sophistication.

It's no good trying to find any dress without a jacket—and one that made us wish we had avoided those canapes was frilled, windswept as to train, and had a diminutive cape from the shoulders. The frills were at the following points:

From the uneven hemline, they rose about five inches. They were frills of the ruffled variety, of cobwebby net. The net appeared again on the cape, the frills rippling from about two inches above the elbow to an inch or so below. And, it had a rather Peter-Pannish neck line, tucking in a tailored bow high under the neck.

The cape off, the pastel crepe dress revealed a very, very, low square backed decolletage. And the colors were all very fancy as to name but turning out to be faint pastels.

Jackets are being featured in crepe, organdie, taffetas, velvets, prints, checks, stripes and plaids and come in a marvelous variety of fabrics.

The jackets may contrast or be more of all-tone ensemble. Unless you have several, may we suggest that you don't get them too frilly. A sound color and a trim cut is much more important than bursting out in more ruffles than grandma's old petticoat.

An attractive one that is making considerable headway is fitted at the normal waistline with a three-button waistline and has one lapel. It thereby reveals a suggestion of your dress for its effective trimming.

Cover the ironing board when not in use so it will stay clean.

Secretary Morgenthau's suggestion that door-to-door income tax salesmen be employed to bring pressure on helpless citizens sounds a great deal like the last straw.

Paying your income tax is an enough already.

Besides, it's probably result in even more falsification of returns.

Most of us have trained ourselves to the point where we wouldn't call the first department if a front-door salesman told us the house was burning down.

The Government probably raise more money and make itself much more popular if it just taxed the guys who are already working the house-to-house circuit.

AMERICAN TRAGEDY

Paris continues to lag behind her neighbors because, until the Opera House is finished, no place is available for public entertainment. This week, for instance, an offer to stage a fan dance for a share of the receipts had to be declined. The dancer, a stunning young woman, let it be known that she would do the Sally Rand dance, but use a much smaller fan than Sally and cavort twice as long.

Committee Report on Thirst

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer.

WITH March dead ahead and no way of stopping it, our roving committee report on the first two months of 1934.

We sent these small but determined posse out to note the difference between prohibition and repeal.

We furnished them with a sum of money and microscopes. All the committees reported progress. But not in a straight line.

We have cafes, yes. We have barrooms, ditto. We have cabarets and night clubs. But the drinking has moderated. A more sober people have throttled it down to the bone at a time.

In the old days they tried to get it all down at once, like a camel at a Saharan well. Now, they realize it will still be here tomorrow, and they go at it more sanely.

True, some of the boys get out of line, due to effervescence and evaporation in transit. But the older majority is handling the juice of the vine with hauteur and aplomb.

That's our story. And we're like the red ant that got on the fly-paper. We don't belong there. But we stick to it just the same. Let's be going.

'RECOVERY DAY' CELEBRATED BY CIVIC BODIES

Luncheon Opens Program to Be Followed by Parade of Uniformed Bodies and Rally at City Hall.

MAYOR DICKMANN,
SPONSOR, SPEAKS

Wires Roosevelt of City's Testimonial in Honor of President's First Year in Office.

A largely attended luncheon at Hotel Jefferson today, with Mayor Dickmann as principal speaker, opened the city's celebration of "Recovery day," marking the close of the first year of President Roosevelt's administration.

The celebration, including an afternoon parade and a public program in the rotunda of City Hall, was sponsored by city officials, civic organizations and business houses, to call attention to improvement in business in the last year. Mayor Dickmann's address, reported fully elsewhere, was a recital of reports of better business made to him by St. Louis firms.

Concluding his address, the Mayor said he wished to convey to President Roosevelt the information that so far as St. Louis was concerned his recovery plans had been a success.

The City Hall, Municipal Courts Building and new city auditorium, facing the new plaza, were decorated with flags and bunting.

Downtown stores, which were cooperating with special recovery sales, had window displays and store decorations in keeping with the occasion. There were many displays of photographs of the President. The large downtown stores employed about 2000 employees for the day to handle sales.

Speakers at Luncheon. Speakers at the luncheon besides Mayor Dickmann were Jacob M. Lashly, Dr. R. Emmet Kane, Henry W. Kiel, Leo C. Fuller, William T. Nardini and City Counselor Hay. Frank K. Harris was general chairman. He introduced John J. Nangle, who presented Thomas N. Dystart, newly elected president of the Chamber of Commerce, who served as toastmaster. The invocation was delivered by Rabbi F. M. Isserman.

More than 1500 attended the luncheon, tickets for which were $1.25. The crowd, which filled the Gold Room and overflowed into other dining rooms, included a strong representation of city employees. Loud speakers carried the addresses to the diners, and the Mayor's speech was broadcast.

The climax of the program was the playing of the National Anthem by an orchestra while legionnaires in uniform stood at attention on the stage and two young women in sailor's uniforms lifted a flag from huge portraits of Gov. Park and Mayor Dickmann. At the same time a large photograph of President Roosevelt was held aloft on the stage.

In a proclamation, Mayor Dickmann asked the city generally to observe today and tomorrow as marking the first anniversary of national recovery. He suggested that ministers make recovery the theme of their sermons tomorrow and some have indicated they will do so.

Telegram to Roosevelt. A telegram telling of the celebration was sent to President Roosevelt today by Mayor Dickmann. It follows:

"As you have been advised, St. Louis is celebrating the week-end of March third and fourth, 1934, as the first anniversary of national recovery, in line with the marked improvement in practically all lines of business since your inauguration one year ago. Local industrialists, merchants, civic organizations and their leaders are participating in a mammoth luncheon celebration on Saturday at which time reports of improvements in all local lines of business will be broadcast.

"These reports will be forwarded to you so that you may know personnel of the success of your plans for national recovery upon business in the Greater St. Louis area. The luncheon celebration will be followed by a mass meeting in the rotunda at the City Hall, in which citizens representing various groups will participate. In view of the wonderful response of our citizens to this celebration and the whole-hearted endorsement of your recovery plans as shown in the reports of our business leaders, I am assured that the citizenry of Greater St. Louis join me in this testimonial of our admiration of your fine courage, wisdom and statesmanship during the most difficult
